iHopP
DIGITAL STORYTELLING

iHopP is a creative project led by the National Museums of World Culture (Sweden) to create an intercultural dialogue platform to facilitate integration of newcomers and local community members. The word iHopP is a mash-up of the Swedish words ihop (together) and hopp (hope). In iHopP, we used digital storytelling for the voices to get heard and to give meaning and context to the participants' experiences. We filmed more than 20 stories in Gothenburg in 2017.

Co-funded by the Creative Europe Programme of the European Union

“Art is not about necessarily making change, but about responding.”

The British-born Cypriot poet, Anthony Anaxagorou

My dream is to be a journalist in the future.

It felt like we, human beings, were back home again.

I left my university, life, and friends

And it makes me immediately feel like home.

It is raining and dark. I live in a refugee camp,
separated from my little brother.

War in Syria.
I lost my job.

“We humanize what is going on in the world and in ourselves only by speaking of it, and in the course of speaking of it, we learn to be human.”

Hannah Arendt

A black and white photograph capturing a group of approximately ten people in a modern, minimalist room. The room features floor-to-ceiling mesh walls, which provide a sense of openness while maintaining privacy. The people are seated in simple, modern chairs, some facing each other in pairs, suggesting a discussion or interview format. The lighting is soft and even, coming from overhead sources. In the foreground, a man with a beard and dark hair is looking directly at the camera. Behind him, a woman is looking down at a piece of paper. To the right, another man is seen from behind, also looking at a document. The overall atmosphere is one of focused engagement and professional interaction.
