

The Anna Lindh Review 2005-2015

Forging a common destiny across the Mediterranean

The Mediterranean region, once again at the centre of the international political agenda, is experiencing the most challenging and hazardous situation of the last two decades.

Twenty years ago, in the aftermath of the Oslo Peace Accords, the European Union, most of the Mediterranean Arab countries, Turkey and Israel jointly launched the Barcelona Process. It was the most ambitious multilateral project of cooperation the region had ever known, ultimately aimed at creating a shared space of peace, stability and prosperity. None of the three goals have yet been attained. Yet there have been positive developments, the most significant among them being the awakening of civil society and its renewed capacity to become a player for social change in the region. In recent years, we have observed those converging demands for freedom, dignity and justice, constituting a powerful reality.

The founders of the Anna Lindh Foundation anticipated the centrality of civil society in working for a common Mediterranean future. The Foundation's mandate for intercultural dialogue was defined not as an abstract meeting of 'cultures', but as a process of social change between human beings and individuals with complex identities and different needs and expectations. A bottom-up approach, based on the shared values and aspirations of the region's citizens, and a long-term strategy to address the true causes – political, ideological and social – that have deepened and radicalised the human gap between the two shores of the Mediterranean.

In its first ten years, the Anna Lindh Foundation has supported region-wide initiatives and campaigns in the fields of education, media and culture, focusing its activities in the spaces where advocating for dialogue is more so needed. Involving thousands of NGOs in its programmes and assuming an advocacy role on intercultural trends, the Foundation has become one of the most credible institutions working within Euro-Med civil society. In the Southern and Eastern countries of the Mediterranean but also in Europe, this very same civil society has shown a strong resilience not to accept the logic of status quo, cultural divide, violence and socially regressive trends, calling for a different future based on shared democratic values and mutual respect.

In this context, the work of the Anna Lindh Foundation today, a decade on from its creation, is more challenging and more essential than ever. For the Union for the Mediterranean whose creation, in the end, succeeded in provoking a new conversation about how to construct a sustainable partnership based on real co-ownership without double standards, the perspective must be clear. Top-down solutions will not work, and any union must be built on the cultural and aspirational convergences between the citizens of the Mediterranean.

Overview

The People of the Anna Lindh Foundation

From all the key figures provided in this review about the achievements of the Anna Lindh Foundation since its inception, the most striking refers to the people involved in its activities.

Throughout the past ten years, thousands of women and men have participated in activities organised by the Foundation and benefited from its programmes. In more recent years, I met many of them. It was during the two Anna Lindh Fora organised in Barcelona and Marseille, but also, and most importantly, in attending grassroots initiatives organised by the Foundation in many places of the region. Most of them were young people. Many of them were women. All of them were citizens in search of hope, committed to the values of the ALF: mutual respect, peace, freedom and human rights. They came to us to meet people of other countries and cultures, and to work with them for better societies. Together, they created spaces of real dialogue, and they acquired competences for making dialogue happen and for participating in public life.

These are the people of the Anna Lindh Foundation. The real owners of an institution whose main challenge has been to be credible and useful for all of them. We have succeeded reasonably. For most of them, participating in one of the Foundation's activities has been a lively experience. Working together they had the opportunity to know each other and share the dreams of their generation. Together, they worked for making possible a future shared by people of different origins. They discussed how to make possible societies where the right to participate, to decide about one's self identity, would be more than a dream.

Conceiving intercultural dialogue as a real exchange among women and men living on both shores of the Mediterranean has been the clue of our success. The limits of mobility have been the main obstacle for involving more people in our activities and achieving a larger impact. Many years ago, Anna Lindh herself raised this question stating that, "The most important issue we have to deal with is freedom of movement."

"I have never had such a long-lasting, effective opportunity in my life. This exchange shaped my career path. My entire organisation changed. It helped me to identify the needs and get better equipped to address them. It was a life-time experience."

Rami Shamseddine, 31 years. Twinning Exchange beneficiary from Lebanon to Slovenia

Building on the experience of the first ten years (*) and the expertise acquired, the Foundation now faces the challenge to better respond to the demands of these people. Our regional constituency is in trouble, with societies shaken by a deep social crisis in most of Europe, and by uncertain and painful transitions in the Southern Mediterranean. But the social reality is more complex, and as the Anna Lindh Report shows, in most of the countries there is a growing appetite for discovering other realities and human exchanges. In many societies, the social and cultural trends go in the opposite direction than the one we receive from populist public discourse or media narratives.

Making visible this paradox and leveraging the will of dialogue and change existing in our societies is the basis for an exciting role for the Foundation and its Networks in the coming years. Let us provide the Foundation for the people of the Mediterranean to do more together. For building a Euro-Med network of citizens committed to democratic values and interested in building societies where social dignity will prevail and people may live together in diversity.

(*) The achievements underlined in this review would not have been possible without the commitment and enthusiasm of all the members of the different staff, my two predecessors, Executive Directors Traugott Schoefthaler and Lucio Guerrato, and without the vision and resolution of President André Azoualy.

A Euro-Mediterranean Network

The Anna Lindh Foundation runs the largest and most diverse Network of civil society organisations involved in the promotion of intercultural dialogue across the Mediterranean.

From its very beginning, the ALF was conceived as a Network of National Networks, established in each of the 43 countries of the Union for the Mediterranean, bringing together around 4000 civil society organisations who share the values of the Foundation.

Since its establishment, the Foundation invested in the development of these Networks, organising local and regional trainings, and reinforcing the capacity of members for Euro-Mediterranean partnership-building and project development. At the same time, the launching of region-wide campaigns involving all the National Networks - such as 1001 Actions for Dialogue and Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges - demonstrated the ALF's unique capacity to mobilise civil society in collective actions for dialogue and in response to political and economic crises with cultural dimensions. The Foundation also invested in capacity-building for its Arab civil society networks, in particular through the Dawrak: Citizens for Dialogue programme, facilitating interaction between different member organisations of the same Network in order to ensure active participation of each organisation in implementing the common mission of the Foundation. The Network of Networks is diverse in terms of its members, including NGOs (57%), public institutions (8%), foundations (11%), local and regional authorities (2%), individuals (3%), private companies (4%) and others. Each National Network is coordinated by a focal point institution named Head of Network, which receives the financial support of the Foundation to cover the operational and logistical needs related to its specific mission, consisting of: raising awareness on intercultural dialogue issues at the national level; facilitating the development and implementation of joint activities among member organisations or across Networks; ensuring coordination, consultation, information, development and mobilisation inside the National Network; involving members in the Foundation's programmes and projects; hosting and benefiting from ALF internship and exchange programmes; and strengthening the cooperation between the Heads of Network and the ALF Headquarters.

The Foundation encourages the Networks to assume the diversity of civil society of their respective countries, to create dynamic cooperation between its members, and to apply democracy, transparency and accountability practices in their coordination operations. In this way, the Anna Lindh Network presents a unique platform of exchange in the Euro-Mediterranean region.

Network Members by Field of Interest

A majority of National Network members work across several fields

Making Intercultural Dialogue Happen

Education for Intercultural Citizenship

Learning to Live Together in Diversity

The Anna Lindh Foundation develops programmes and resources for educators and youth leaders, with a focus on promoting dialogue skills and intercultural citizenship learning.

Since its launch, the Foundation has pioneered and partnered in the development of new education resources. Its flagship publication 'The Anna Lindh Handbook on Intercultural Citizenship' resulted from a two year work process, involving 90 educators and experts from the South and North Mediterranean. The Euro-Med Handbook, which has also led to a complementary resource for Arab countries, is the basis for a regional training programme for educators on intercultural citizenship learning.

Through this process, the Foundation has also built a region-wide network of teachers to enable a professional exchange on educational approaches to manage diversity. This network has grown year by year into an established Euro-Med educational community involving experts and educators from the formal and non-formal sector. The annual 'Alexandria Education Convention', in partnership with the Swedish Institute, has been an opportunity to bring together members of this community, to share good practices and develop contents for new learning materials. The Foundation led a series of regional training courses in its first phase on 'cultural diversity, human rights, peace and coexistence' taking place in several Euro-Med countries. As part of the course, eight educational modules were developed in partnership with the Pestalozzi programme. The Foundation launched in collaboration with the Council of Europe the manual 'How to Cope with Diversity at

Schools' and in collaboration with the League of Arab States, Unesco, Ilesco and the Swedish Institute the 'Guidebook for History Textbooks Authors'. It also facilitated coordination among different actors from the youth sector, and contributed to major regional forums, including: the first Euro-Med Youth Parliament (Germany, 2007); the Euro-Med Youth Forum (Italy, 2010); and the Anna Lindh Mediterranean Forum's Preparatory Meeting on Youth (Turkey, 2013).

The Anna Lindh Intercultural Grants Programme resulted in a series of trans-national programmes: the 'Baltic International Summer School' for youth encounters between Eastern European and the Mediterranean; the 'Let's Film: Zoom through the Cultural Glass', a project building skills using video animation for youth leaders in Palestine and Poland. New pedagogical products have also been pioneered through the granted initiatives, including: the 'Adventures of Joha in the Mediterranean' story-telling book circulated in secondary schools in Morocco, France, Italy and Algeria; the 'Peace Bag for Euro-Med Youth' with resources for youth workers involved in promoting a culture of peace; and the 'Youth for Change' Guidebook adapted to the Mediterranean realities. The pedagogical products are published through the ALF Digital Education Community.

“Common values present a foundation to work from. Differences present the challenge of appreciating diversity, but also the opportunity to learn and perhaps more deeply understand one’s own community”

Dalia Mogahed, Executive Director at Gallup’s Centre for Muslim Studies and Anna Lindh Report expert

- 45 granted projects in the field of education and intercultural learning
- 20 regional trainings and conventions with more than 750 teachers and professional educators involved
- Over 100 good practices and project ideas presented during the two Anna Lindh Fora
- 150 education professionals involved in the elaboration of the education handbooks and conventions
- Main partners: Council of Europe, UNESCO, The League of Arab States, ISESCO, ALECSO, Swedish Institute and UN Alliance of Civilizations
- Developed resources: Handbook on Intercultural Citizenship Education in the Euro-Mediterranean Region; Manual on Culture and Conflict Resolution; Conflict Resolution and Cultural Cooperation - Good Practices for Trainers; Manual on How to Cope with Diversity in the Classroom; Guidebook for History Textbooks Authors; Manual on Intercultural Citizenship Education in the Arab Countries

Arts for Social Change

Fostering Cultural Creativity and Exchange

In the arts sector, the Foundation works with cultural managers and groups from across the Mediterranean, to promote joint South/North productions and empower local communities.

'Arts for Social Change' has been a theme running through the Foundation's capacity-building work with cultural leaders since 2005. This ranged from the 'Cross-Border Arts Project', launched following the 2006 Lebanon War to bring together Euro-Med artists using cultural creation as a means of reconciliation, to the 2014 Dawrak training in Amman with 44 cultural leaders and youth workers from 10 Arab countries.

In 2009, the ALF organised the regional meeting on 'Creativity, Mobility and Dialogue' in Greece, gathering 69 cultural operators from the Anna Lindh Networks, and the following year, in 2010, the Foundation's Networks launched the exhibition 'Faces for the Mediterranean' with youth from diverse socio-cultural backgrounds. In terms of international collaborations, the 'Sea of Words' literary contest, organised with the Spanish Head of Network IEMed, has involved more than 120 young writers in its six editions, and the 'Plural +' youth video festival on migration has tackled issues of cultural diversity in partnership with the UN Alliance of Civilizations.

The Foundation has organised a series of high-profile cultural events, among them: 'Euro-Med Dialogue Night' (2008), held simultaneously across 38 countries, involving over 30,000 people in public events and debates on cross-cultural issues; 'Euro-Arab Concert for Dialogue' (2009), broadcast from the Cairo Opera House; 'Hip-Hop Connection' (2010) with music groups from Germany, France, Turkey and Egypt; and 'Arts, Instruments and Expressions for Social Transformation' (2014) in Taroudant, Morocco, with several Anna Lindh National Networks. The Foundation also contributed to the Biennale of Young Artists from Europe and the Mediterranean held in Italy which brought together more than 700 artists, and partnered in a series of editions of the 'Babel Med Music' Festival.

The flagship cultural event for Alexandria, the host city of the Foundation's headquarters, has been the 'Farah el Bahr' Festival. The event, which has had five editions since its inception in 2005, combines grass-root artistic initiatives and educational outreach activities with cultural contributions from Europe and the Mediterranean on the theme of cultural diversity. Alexandria has also played host to an innovative programme of 'Music Debate Workshops', organised as part of Dawrak and Young Arab Voices, where young people had the opportunity to voice their concerns using hip-hop music and debating skills.

Mobility remains a key issue for the region's cultural sector, as expressed through the Anna Lindh Mediterranean Forum and Report on Intercultural Trends. As an intergovernmental institution, the Foundation also advocates at the political level for removing the barriers to artistic exchange.

A photograph of a man with dark curly hair, wearing a white short-sleeved shirt and a dark tie, playing a stringed instrument, possibly a guitar or a similar folk instrument. He is shown in profile, looking towards the left. The background is a textured wall, possibly stone or brick, illuminated with a purple and blue light. A microphone stand is visible in the foreground.

“There is nothing called a single Mediterranean culture: there are rather several cultures within a unique Mediterranean. Such cultures are characterised by traits that are a mixture of similarities and dissimilarities at the same time, rarely united and practically never identifiable”

Predrag Matvejevic, Professor at Rome's La Sapienza University and Anna Lindh Report expert

- 81 granted projects and 50 collaborations in the field of cultural creativity and exchange
- More than 60.000 people involved in the main ALF cultural events (Euro-Med Dialogue Night; Farah al Bahr; Arts, Instruments & Expressions for Social Transformation) involving many thousands of artists from around the Euro-Med region
- 1467 short stories received and 132 awarded in six editions of the 'Sea of Words' contest
- Main partners: Transeuropeennes, Literature Across Frontiers, Babelmed, Heinrich Boell Foundation, Cittadellarte-Fondazione Pistoletto, IEMed, the Egyptian Ministry of Culture and Tourism, Centre International de Coopération Sud Nord (CICSN), Royal Institute for Inter-Faith Studies (RIIFS)

Media Across Cultures

Impacting Perceptions

Engaging journalists from the Mediterranean in a permanent dialogue on issues of cross-cultural reporting is at the heart of the Anna Lindh Foundation's approach to the media field.

This approach has been carried out together with the Euro-Med Journalism Network through a programme of co-organised national debates involving media, academic experts and civil society representatives from 42 countries on: rapid response to intercultural crises (Athens, 2008); conflict reporting (London, 2009); media networking (Istanbul, 2009); peace-building (Stockholm, 2009); press freedom (Marrakech, 2010); reporting on migration (Barcelona, 2010); conflict resolution (Dublin, 2010); the role of media in democratic transition (Tunis, 2011); the Arab Spring and Europe's perception of Islam (Palermo, 2012); media facing tensions and transitions (Barcelona, 2013); and reporting on extremism with Thompson Reuters Foundation (London, 2014).

Providing international platforms for advocacy on media matters has been another pillar of work. The first Anna Lindh Report on Intercultural Trends (2010) had a thematic focus on the 'impact of the media on mutual perceptions', and the largest preparatory meeting for the 2013 Anna Lindh Mediterranean Forum brought together more than 100 leading journalists to debate 'media facing tensions and transition in the Mediterranean'. Following the historic events of the Arab social uprisings, the Foundation co-organised a global media forum at the headquarters of the League of Arab States (LAS), with the presence of the LAS Secretary-General and leading international journalists. The same year saw the organisation of the first Summit of Television Owners and Media Managers organised at the Dead Sea in Jordan with the European Broadcasting Union (EBU).

Through established strategic partners, the Foundation has contributed to capacity-building initiatives for journalists. This included launching a training programme on ethical reporting with Search for Common Ground and the International Centre of Journalists, and granting support to the first 'Young Journalist Academy' focused on skills development for a new generation of cross-cultural reporters. The Foundation has also worked to find synergies with other media actors operating in the region, partnering in projects with CFI, BBC Media Action, COPEAM, UN Alliance for Civilizations, Arab States Broadcasting Union, Media Tenor International, Chatham House, Babel Med, and the EU 'MED MEDIA' programme.

In the domain of new media, the Foundation pioneered a network of young bloggers from the Middle East, North Africa and Europe, producing the 'Bloggers Toolkit for Dialogue and Social Participation'. Through this network, social media activists have been engaged in peer-to-peer capacity-building initiatives with senior journalists, as well as international debate platforms focused on the theme of ethical reporting. The development of training modules on 'debate in the digital sphere' were also launched, in association with the Young Arab Voices programme.

“I consider that all of us are close but we still do not know each other very well. In this regard, the media plays a central role in not only reflecting the public opinion but also in shaping it, helping to bridge the gap in mutual understanding”

Amin Maalouf, Writer and former Chairperson of the Anna Lindh Journalist Award

- More than 800 journalists and experts involved in international media conferences organised with the Euro-Med Journalism Network related to reporting on conflict, migration, democratic transition, press freedom
- More than 100 journalists and academic experts from Europe, the Middle East, North Africa involved in the London Media Forum following the war in Gaza
- Over 300 cross-cultural experts involved in the website resource 'euromedmedia.org' launched by the ALF, EU and UN Alliance of Civilizations
- More than 750 applications to the Anna Lindh Journalist Award for Reporting across Cultures between 2006 and 2011
- Main partners: Euro-Med Journalism Network, COPEAM Audiovisual Network, UN Alliance of Civilizations, League of Arab States, European Broadcasting Union, Arab States Broadcasting Union, Media Tenor International, Chatham House, Babel Med, BBC Media Trust, Thomson Reuters Foundation, CFI

Flagship Initiatives

Anna Lindh Mediterranean Forum

The Anna Lindh Mediterranean Forum is a unique gathering that brings together the region's main actors for intercultural dialogue, including CSOs, youth leaders, policy-makers and experts on cross-cultural issues. Following the successful first edition in Barcelona in 2010, the follow-up edition was launched in Marseille in 2013 under the banner 'Citizens for the Mediterranean'.

The Anna Lindh Forum's programme centres on two key pillars: the 'Agora', dedicated to plenary debate and workshops with experts on the achievements and challenges of social and cultural cooperation in the regional framework; and the 'Medina', which brings together members of the Anna Lindh Networks and regional partners to foster ideas and build new partnerships and initiatives.

The Forum is developed through a participatory process involving thematic meetings with civil society to the South and North of the Mediterranean. The Forum has also been the unique platform to bring together the main bodies of the Anna Lindh Foundation, including its Board of Governors. The Barcelona Forum, from 4th to 7th March 2010, was the first time since the launch of the Union for the Mediterranean (UfM) that over 1000 civil society representatives from all 43 countries of the Union gathered together for intercultural dialogue. The Forum conclusions directly impacted the Foundation's regional programme development, in particular the emphasis on the importance of intercultural citizenship learning, investment in capacity-building in the Southern Mediterranean, and responding to the impact of the global economic crisis on social cohesion.

The follow-up Forum in Marseille, France, from 4th to 7th April 2013, went a step further in terms of scale. Firstly, it mobilised more than 3500 civil society leaders during its preparation process, increasing significantly the participation from the Southern and Eastern Mediterranean region. Secondly, it secured a significant impact through the mainstream press and digital media in Europe and the Southern Mediterranean region. The Marseille Forum was also successfully built on the creation of a steering group involving for the first time all the Euro-Med institutions (Anna Lindh Foundation, UfM Parliamentary Assembly, UfM Secretariat), the Arab League and EU agencies. Taking place in the aftermath of 2011's Arab social uprisings, the Forum's conclusions underlined the role of Mediterranean cooperation in supporting civil society's work for open and pluralistic societies, and the emphasis on the contribution of citizens to building a shared Mediterranean space.

“The Anna Lindh Forum has been a great success at this historic moment for building a union across the Mediterranean. The re-launching of Euro-Med Dialogue must centre on the mobilisation of civil society and the citizens for the Mediterranean”

Martin Schulz, President of the European Parliament

- 1374 participants registered for the Marseille Forum, representing 46 countries. 48 sessions and debates over 140 hours; 200 institutional partners involved. 64 good practices and project ideas presented, 99 stands of civil society and ALF partners at the Intercultural Fair
- Across the two Forum editions, on average 75% of participants were positive about the opportunities to interact with organisations and institutions, and 56% stated that they planned to establish partnerships with organisations they met at the Forum
- Almost all participants considered sessions of the Forum relevant to their work, and around 40% of participants surveyed after the Forum gave examples of tools and knowledge they are now applying in their work
- 191,522 twitter accounts reached, more than 55 media pieces produced. The digital outreach dimension of the Forum led to a measurable increase in followers to the ALF's Facebook and Twitter pages, forming an important basis for the ALF's new digital-first communications strategy

Report on Intercultural Trends

The Anna Lindh Report on Intercultural Trends and Social Change is a pioneering tool for knowledge and action on cross-cultural relations in the Mediterranean region. Published every three years, the Report combines a Gallup Public Opinion Poll gathering the voices of thousands of people across Europe and the Southern and Eastern Mediterranean region, with a wide range of analysis by a network of intercultural experts.

The themes explored in The Anna Lindh Report are at the heart of international public debate, including: Social Change in the Mediterranean region, Differences and Similarities in Value Systems; the Religious Factor in Intercultural Relations; Human Mobility; the Role of Culture in Mediterranean Relations; Intercultural Citizenship; the Union for the Mediterranean and Regional Cooperation. In this way, the Report is an instrument in the hands of opinion-leaders and civil society actors working to advocate for positive change to the Mediterranean Dialogue agenda.

The first edition of The Report, which took two years in the making, was launched in Brussels in 2010 by the EU Commissioner for European Neighbourhood Policy. The follow-up edition was published in June 2014, with a particular emphasis on the impact of the historic events of the Arab social uprisings on trends. Both Reports were based on a combination of polling carried out by Gallup with more than 26,000 citizens in 21 different Euro-Med countries, and qualitative analysis by experts aimed at providing a contextual interpretation of the opinion poll results. The countries have been chosen in a rotation system which permits a gradual survey of the entire region.

Since its launch, the Anna Lindh Report has also served as a tool for policy debate. In collaboration with the Foundation's international partners and National Civil Society Networks, various debate events have been organised across the region. This has ranged from the Italian Parliament in Rome with the President of the Chamber of Deputies and a national debate organised in Rabat with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, to a conference in Krakow on cultural diversity and a BBC broadcast debate in London on reviewing national policies for social cohesion.

A digital portal has also been launched for the Report, with the following features: a database of global experts on cross-cultural affairs; a library of articles and publications on issues related to social trends; and a series of online digests, covering topics such as 'youth participation in the midst of economic challenges', 'women in a time of change', 'social media in the Arab countries'; and 'the role of media in shaping perceptions in the Mediterranean'.

“A key finding for political leaders on both sides of the Mediterranean is that their citizens are looking to work together and find new, alternative ways to participate in their societies”

Stefan Füle, EU Commissioner for Enlargement and European Neighbourhood Policy

- 26,000 people from 21 Euro-Mediterranean countries surveyed in the two public Opinion Polls by Gallup Europe
- 82 intercultural experts involved in the qualitative analysis from 21 Euro-Mediterranean countries, 67 analyses and case studies on trends and perceptions in the Mediterranean
- 21 countries surveyed: Albania, Belgium, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Denmark, France, Egypt, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Jordan, Lebanon, Morocco, Poland, Spain, Sweden, Syria, Tunisia, Turkey and the United Kingdom
- The content and main findings of the Report have formed the basis of a programme of national debates carried out in collaboration with academic partners, think-tanks and the Anna Lindh National Networks, involving media practitioners and social leaders

1001 Actions for Dialogue Campaign

The Anna Lindh Foundation's first region-wide campaign was launched in 2008 for the Euro-Mediterranean Year for Dialogue between Cultures.

Seizing the occasion of the 'Year of Dialogue', the Anna Lindh Foundation and its National Networks came together for the very first time to launch a collective campaign. The aim of the campaign was to involve civil society organisations and individuals in a common programme of action at the local and regional level, creating a critical mass of activities which would culminate in a shared closing activity scheduled for the end of May called 'Dialogue Night'. The campaign was built on the mobilisation of hundreds of members of the Networks who worked to establish new collaborations with national institutions and other regional platforms and networks.

To facilitate the development of intercultural actions, a support scheme was put in place and launched by the Foundation. The ALF Headquarters awarded and financed 202 proposals for co-organisation in response to the open call, ensuring a balance between the Networks in the distribution of the grants. For the first time the Foundation awarded grants in all the countries of the Euro-Mediterranean Partnership to organisations ranging from local and regional NGOs and university departments to local youth groups and grassroots organisations. The publication 'Dialogue in Action' was produced as one of the key products of the campaign, featuring hundreds of actions developed in different national contexts and country profiles. The main outcomes were presented by the President of the Anna Lindh Foundation to the first Euro-Med Ministerial Conference on Intercultural Dialogue taking place in Athens, Greece. In its conclusions, the Conference underlined the central role of the Anna Lindh Foundation in promoting intercultural dialogue in the region.

As a culmination of the '1001 Actions', and to reinforce the sense of Euro-Med ownership among the participants in the campaign, the Anna Lindh Foundation mobilised its Networks and partners in a unique simultaneous event for dialogue: the very first Euro-Mediterranean Dialogue Night. On the 22nd of May 2008, over one hundred cultural and public events took place at the same time in major cities of the region, involving more than thirty thousand people in thirty-five countries. The synchronised timing of the Dialogue Night and its amplification through global media networks and partners played an important role in delivering the key messages of the campaign to hundreds of thousands of people elsewhere at the local and international level.

Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges

'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' was the initial response of the Anna Lindh Foundation to the political and economic crises which impacted on the Euro-Mediterranean region at the start of 2009. The model was developed further in 2014 as a tool in the face of rising intolerance and conflict in the region.

The war in Gaza of January 2009 and its impact on Euro-Med societies was a striking challenge for an institution working with civil society organisations in forty-three countries, among them Israel and Palestine. Under a joint framework established with the UN Alliance of Civilizations, the Foundation and its Networks launched a regional initiative to rebuild bridges among the communities affected by the conflict and raise awareness of the impact of the economic crisis on cross-cultural relations.

With the purpose of supporting a series of actions devoted to reconciliation and a culture of peace, the Foundation put in place a support scheme for local and regional activities which received more than 200 project proposals through an open call. In total more than sixty projects were implemented, some of them at the local community level, across Euro-Med countries, and others took place in the Middle East, with the participation of partner organisations in Israel and Palestine. In the same context, the Foundation also carried out two major cultural events involving artists, and social and cultural operators. This included the 'Border Line' activity in Israel with activities in Bat Yam and Jaffa on the issue of Mediterranean identity, and a series on cultural performances in Palestine, with a Theatre Festival in Gaza City, Bethlehem, Hebron and Jenin addressing issues such as social relief, non-violent self-determination and coexistence.

On the 21st of September 2009, the International Day of Peace, the Anna Lindh Foundation presented the initial outcomes of the 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' initiative at a regional forum organised in partnership with the Stockholm International Peace Research Centre, the European Commission, the UN Alliance of Civilizations and the National Museums of World Culture. Held in Stockholm, in the framework of the Swedish Presidency of the European Union, the Forum brought together leading Mediterranean personalities, social activists, project leaders and media experts from around the region, to debate the challenges of intercultural dialogue and coexistence in the region.

For the 2014 Napoli Conference – marking the 10th Anniversary of the Anna Lindh Foundation – the 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' model was the basis for debating the response of the ALF and its Networks to the rising levels of violence, xenophobia and extremism impacting Euro-Med civil society.

“I am personally inspired by the initiatives which aim to restore trust between people, to move beyond the problems we all face across our societies and to ensure that people in our region can live in a dignified environment”

Lakhdar Brahimi, former UN Peace Envoy, speaking at the Restore Trust International Forum in Stockholm

- Adaptation of the Anna Lindh programme including the Euro-Med Dialogue Award on the theme of ‘Peace and Coexistence’ and a special category for the Anna Lindh Journalist Award on Conflict Reporting

Translation for the Mediterranean

The Anna Lindh Foundation has continually supported the efforts of translators throughout the Mediterranean as translation provides a basis for the convergence of ideas, concepts and cultures through its reception.

Over the last 2 years, the ALF has supported 'A Mapping of Translation in the Euro-Mediterranean Region', a promising study involving a large number of partner organisations, researchers and translators, in collaboration with Transeuropeenes (France). The mapping and its conclusions provide key insights in defining a long term Euro-Mediterranean Translation Strategy and related actions including resourceful materials for researchers, a roadmap for cultural operators and policy recommendations for decision makers and funders. The project mobilised approximately 64 literary translators, publishers and researchers (doctoral and postdoctoral) knowledgeable of the world of translation and trained in comparative literature, human and social sciences. A virtual office allowed for a set of documents collected during the work to be available to partners in the project and to those carrying out the studies.

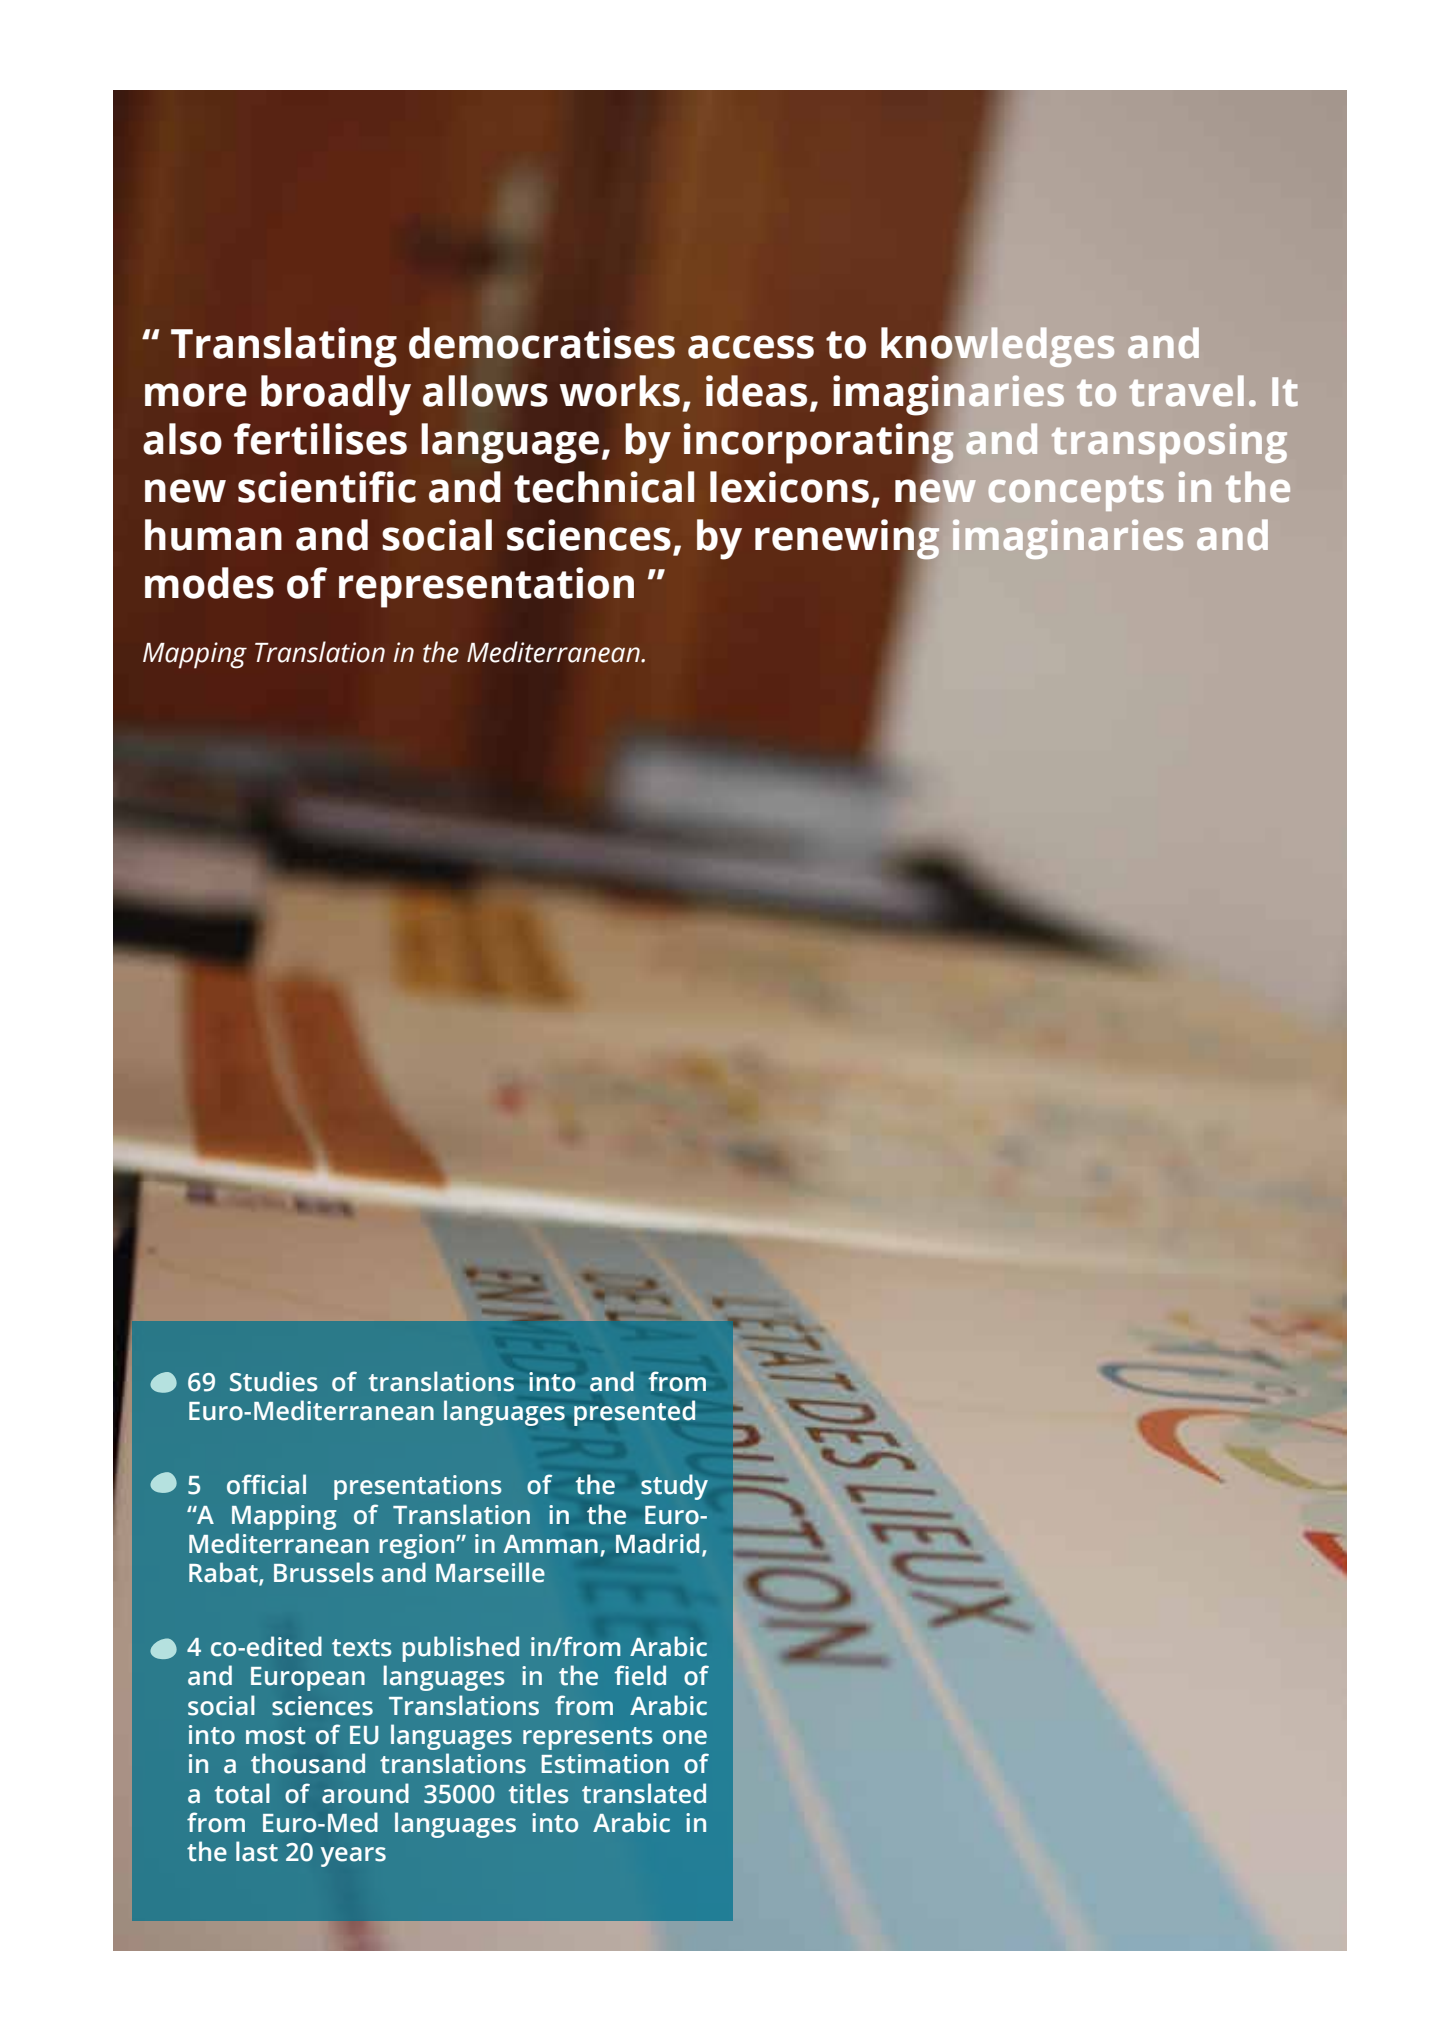

From 2012, ALF translation programme focused on addressing the issues that emerged in the report 'A Mapping of Translation in the Euro-Mediterranean Region'. In particular, the development of the programme was based on findings showing that translations of social and human sciences range from 5% to 10% of translations in the region throughout the past 20 years and that translations to and from Arabic represent a small percentage among the translated works in the Euro-Mediterranean region.

Enhancing the debate on issues of common concern with a specific focus on the topic of citizenship and social cohesion is a pivotal aim of the Anna Lindh Foundation's translation programme.

As a final step of its programme on translation, the Foundation organised a Euro-Mediterranean Conference in Cairo on Translation and Intercultural Dialogue with the support of the French government and with the participation of actors, experts and leaders from the field of translation. The purpose of the conference was to promote and highlight the outcomes of the programme developed throughout the past years in order to lay the basis for the second phase of the Euro-Med Translations programme in 2015, including formulating recommendations for a new regional cooperation policy designed through a multilateral approach of equal exchange, identifying possible solutions through a consultative process involving civil society, translators and publishers, as well as identifying civil society needs in relation to translation issues.

“ Translating democratises access to knowledges and more broadly allows works, ideas, imaginaries to travel. It also fertilises language, by incorporating and transposing new scientific and technical lexicons, new concepts in the human and social sciences, by renewing imaginaries and modes of representation ”

Mapping Translation in the Mediterranean.

- 69 Studies of translations into and from Euro-Mediterranean languages presented
- 5 official presentations of the study “A Mapping of Translation in the Euro-Mediterranean region” in Amman, Madrid, Rabat, Brussels and Marseille
- 4 co-edited texts published in/from Arabic and European languages in the field of social sciences Translations from Arabic into most of EU languages represents one in a thousand translations Estimation of a total of around 35000 titles translated from Euro-Med languages into Arabic in the last 20 years

Opportunities for Arab Youth

Dawrak - Citizens for Dialogue

Dawrak ('Your Turn' in Arabic) is a programme focused on providing civil society leaders with skills for participating in public life and contributing to building open and pluralistic societies.

Launched in 2012, the Dawrak programme has been rolled-out across ten Arab Mediterranean countries – Mauritania, Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, Libya, Egypt, Palestine, Lebanon and Jordan. The programme centres on three main components: 'Exchange'; 'Spaces'; and 'Capacity-building'.

An innovative twinning scheme, 'Dawrak: Exchange', has offered the possibility to organise exchanges among members of civil society organisations (CSOs), between Arab and other Euro-Med countries in the field of civic participation and dialogue, lasting up to three months. In its first phase, 52 CSOs were directly involved, from eight southern and eight northern Mediterranean countries, with 13 twinning schemes. There was also a specific exchange initiative to enable journalists of the region to share their experiences in news-rooms of other countries.

Through 'Dawrak: Capacity-building', five trainings have taken place: 'Education for Intercultural Citizenship' in Beirut (November 2013), in partnership with Adyan Foundation, and in Tunis (February 2014) with Club UNESCO; 'Youth in Local Dialogue' in Marrakech (November 2013) with the Centre de Recherches et d'Études Appliquées en Développement Humain, and in Beirut (February 2014) with Notre Dame University-Louaize; and 'Arts for Social Change' in Amman (March 2014) in partnership with the Jordanian Head of Network – The Royal Institute for Interfaith Studies. 'Dawrak: Spaces' has offered networking opportunities and dialogue tools at the national level. This has included a series of meetings with Anna Lindh Networks in the Arab region, including 'Euro- Mediterranean Youth facing Crisis: Citizenship, Arts and Transitions' in Sousse (March 2013) and 'Empowering Civil Society for Intercultural Dialogue in Egypt' held in Cairo with more than 100 civil society leaders. The capacity-building work has led to the production of a series of digital resources and mapping exercises to support practitioners operating in the field.

A focus of all the Dawrak activities has been the preparation of the first Moltaqa ('Encounter' in Arabic), a major civil society gathering in Alexandria, Egypt, aimed at: firstly, disseminating the tools, practices and methodologies developed for practitioners in the field; and secondly, debating how the programme can continue to adapt to the emerging regional realities. The Moltaqa was timed to take place in 2014 on the occasion of the 10th anniversary since the establishment of the Anna Lindh Foundation's international headquarters in Egypt, and in preparation for the Foundation's next phase.

“We share so many common values, yet we are so unique and we need to celebrate this uniqueness in a special way. It is not about the North giving expertise to the South; it is about sharing the diversity of cultures”

Rasha Abdulla, Professor at the American University of Cairo

- 54 beneficiaries have been involved in the Exchange and Twining schemes
- Participants from 26 countries have been involved in Dawrak programme
- 11 journalists have mobilized through the journalists routes and 11 institutions in 10 countries have been involved
- 5 capacity building activities have taken place, 300 young professionals in Education, Arts for Change and Youth have benefited from trainings
- 6 activities on intercultural dialogue and partnerships have been promoted, gathering 400 participants involved in 4 national network meetings have been delivered, and 9 Arab national networks have been involved in the development of the programme by participating, hosting or organising different activities of Dawrak
- More than 2000 total participants, 30 000 indirect beneficiaries and around 1 million reached online

Young Arab Voices

Young Arab Voices (YAV) has delivered new opportunities for skills development and debating activities to thousands of young people across the Mediterranean region.

Launched in 2011 in response to the historic events of the Arab social uprisings, the YAV programme involved in its first 3 years more than 90,000 youth in debating activities in 6 targeted countries: Algeria, Egypt, Libya, Jordan, Morocco and Tunisia. The programme, which was co-created by the Anna Lindh Foundation and the British Council, has been structured around three main components: regional training for trainers programme in debate methodologies; investment in the creation of debating hubs within education institutions and civil society groups; international exchange opportunities for debaters from the Mediterranean region and Europe. One of the particular successes has been the social and geographical outreach of the programme, involving diverse communities from urban and rural settings in more than 70 governorates in target countries.

In addition to grass-root debate activities, YAV has provided major platforms for youth advocacy. This included the first High-Level Debate with The Elders (2012) involving former President Jimmy Carter and President Mary Robinson, and Dialogue events with the Secretary-General of the League of Arab States and the President of the European Parliament. The digital outreach dimension of the programme also ensured that thousands of citizens across the region took part in debate fora, and televised broadcast debates were organised with ON-TV, BBC Arabic and France 24.

Analysis of debate trends related to the programme reveal a certain movement from high-level political affairs to more localised social, economic and development issues, including: freedom of expression, tribal ideology and Arab identity, healthcare reform, the role of civil society, women's rights, role of media, employment and privatisation, change of cultural spectrum, hooliganism, foreign relations, the role of religion, school curriculum, and environment.

The exchange component of the YAV programme has allowed hundreds of debaters from the Arab region to travel to international events in Europe and the wider world, as well as peer-to-peer good practices exchange between debate trainers on the two shores of the Mediterranean. Each year since the programme's inception a summer-school activity has been organised in London in association with the International Debate Association (IDEA), the Anna Lindh UK National Network and the British Council.

“I have been very impressed by the level of participation by young people involved in this programme. Young Arab Voices is a great example of the way youth can be connected through different countries and have their voices heard”

President Mary Robinson, The Elders

- More than 1000 debates took place, engaging more than 9,000 debaters with 59% male and 41% female participation
- More than 70 governorates involving 6 countries: Jordan, Egypt, Libya, Tunisia, Algeria, Morocco
- 265 of international mobility opportunities provided for debaters
- YAV programme exposed to more than 90,000 in live debate audience, more than 1,000,000 in online audience and more than 100,000,000 of TV/Radio audience
- More than 60 partnerships developed in three years of programme
- Main media partners: BBC Arabic, France 24 Arabic, Radio Monte Carlo Dualiya, ON TV, Rouya Jordan

Arab Children's Literature Programme

The Children's Literature and Reading Programme of the Anna Lindh Foundation was launched as a regional initiative aimed at fostering the development of children through promoting children's literature and reading in the Middle East and North Africa region.

Funded by the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency, the programme was launched in 2006 across 5 focus countries: Egypt, Jordan, Syria, Palestine and Lebanon, with the aim of promoting reading for pleasure among Arab children and developing the quality of Arabic children's literature. A substantial part of the programme funding was allocated for the implementation of national activities in the five countries.

The development of the work plans at the national level was led by a local coordinator or Host Institution and seeks to respond to the needs specific to that country. These work plans have included visibility and advocacy activities; developing resource and training centres for children's literature; renovating and providing equipment and books to public and class libraries; training of librarians, teachers, and animators; training of writers and illustrators; activities with children to promote reading such as story-telling sessions, book discussions, and special competitions; local research projects and needs assessments; local exhibitions; and contests and prizes targeting producers of books, individuals and organisations working in the field of the promotion of reading.

As a regional programme, a major priority has been to increase dialogue between Arab countries in the field of children's literature and reading promotion. The programme has organised regional meetings and workshops to facilitate contact-making, joint discussion and networking among the Host Institutions and partners, researchers, university professors and practitioners in the field of reading promotion. In addition, the programme implemented a range of regional activities including a bi-annual itinerant book exhibition '101 Books Exhibition'.

One of the major regional activities was the Iqraa or Reading Here, There and Everywhere Prize, a regional book prize aimed at providing publishing houses in the five focus countries with an incentive for the production of quality children literature. The authors, illustrators and publishers of the winning books received cash prizes and a special bestowing event was organised, including an award ceremony, readings in public libraries and an art activity.

A young girl with dark hair, wearing a green and white striped headband and a blue and white plaid school uniform, is focused on reading a red book. In the background, other children in school uniforms are visible, and a colorful, abstract artwork is hanging on the wall. The setting appears to be a library or a classroom.

“For the past three years, the programme has contributed to enhancing the quality of life for children in Palestine, despite trying circumstances”

Ruba Totah, Tamer Institute, Palestine

- 46 libraries renovated and relaunched for children
- Around 650 librarians, teachers and teacher-trainers trained
- More than 140 authors and illustrators trained
- Around 30,000 children participated in storytelling activities, book discussions, cultural activities and local exhibitions
- More than 5000 copies of more than 200 titles published by around 40 publishers distributed in the five countries
- More than 80 stakeholders have attended regional meetings
- Around 11 resources produced, including research papers, guidebooks, need assessment studies

Grants and Resources

Anna Lindh Grants Intercultural Programme

One of the most important ways the Anna Lindh Foundation fulfills its mission is by providing grants to civil society organisations through an open Call for Proposals (CFP).

During a period of ten years, the Foundation has launched seven regional calls for proposals and supported 218 projects and programmes involving more than 600 organisations, with a total envelope of 8.25 million euros. The CFPs are focused on the Anna Lindh Foundation's priority fields, granting financial support for transnational projects developed by civil society and NGOs across the two shores of the Mediterranean. For this reason all the financed projects have involved one or more civil society partners from the South and the North.

Projects and programmes granted have addressed issues of common interest in the Euro-Mediterranean region, generating effective impact at the institutional and grassroots levels, fostering cross-cultural dialogue, encouraging communities in the region to know each other better, to live and work together, to develop partnerships in various fields and settings; developing integrated approaches, putting in relation issues of different natures and associating different types of stakeholders, gathering people working in the same type of structure or not (like academic researches, NGO exchanges, artistic creation but also joint projects with regional and local authorities, between private and public institutions, between people working in formal education and people working in non-formal and informal education).

The grants have covered seminars, roundtable meetings, training initiatives, photo exhibitions, video production, books, musical events, theatre productions, festivals, academic research initiatives, which add value to the main fields of the Foundation and its core strategies. Globally the projects have reached thousands of the ALF's main target groups, including youth, women and migrants, in the North and South, and also in small towns and communities confirming the outreach ability of the Foundation. The grants allowed concrete interaction with the grass root civil society groups, promoting the pivotal role of intercultural dialogue in dealing with the different aspects of civil societies.

Publications and Digital Resources

The Anna Lindh Foundation has produced a range of new publications focused on managing cultural diversity, sharing good practices on intercultural dialogue, and presenting analysis on cross-cultural trends and values.

In 2010, the Foundation launched the very first global report on 'Euro-Med Intercultural Trends' with articles from a network of intercultural experts in more than 30 countries and based on a Gallup Public Opinion Survey on Mediterranean values. The second edition of Anna Lindh Report based on a different selection of Euro-Med countries and analysis of trends and views from the ground was published in 2014. For the Euro-Mediterranean Year of Dialogue between Cultures, the ALF launched the book 'Dialogue in Action' in Athens on the occasion of the first Euro-Med Ministerial on Intercultural Dialogue (2008), containing more than 1000 local and transnational dialogue case studies.

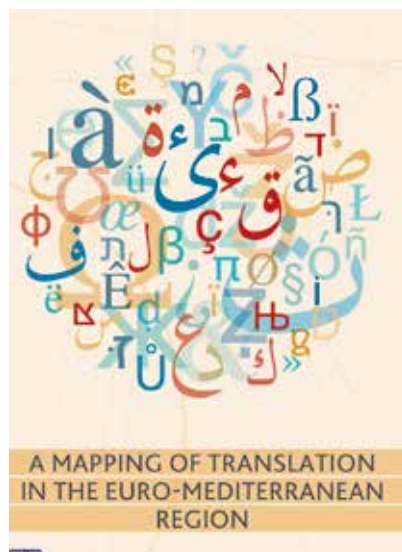

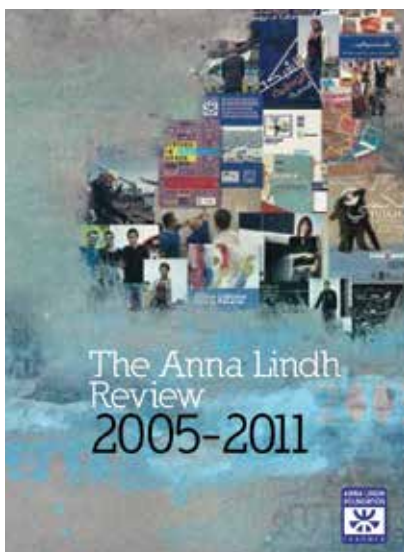

The ALF's first publication 'Unity in Diversity' (2005) involved intercultural experts in analysing the challenges of intercultural dialogue in the region, and in 2006, the ALF prepared the book 'Communication and Misperceptions' for the first Euro-Med Ministerial meeting on gender, held in Istanbul. For educators and learners, the ALF launched the pedagogical manual 'How to cope with diversity at schools' (2007) which supports students in discovering diverse cultures and beliefs, and the ALF collaborated on the production of the 'Guidebook for History Textbook Authors' (2011). Recognising the increasing role of social media activists in intercultural dialogue work, the ALF supported a network of leading young bloggers in pioneering the first Euro-Med 'Bloggers for Dialogue' (2011) toolkit, containing a range of training resources and access to online tools.

A major resource for non-formal and formal educators has been developed: 'The Anna Lindh Handbook on Intercultural Citizenship Education in the Euro-Med Region' and its complementary resource with a focus on 'Intercultural Citizenship Education in Arab Countries' in partnership with Adyan Foundation.

For NGO leaders in the field of peace culture and conflict resolution, the ALF created the toolkit on 'Conflict Resolution and Cultural Cooperation' (2007), with good practices for trainers, and the 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' booklet, with case studies on local and regional peace initiatives (2009). For cultural leaders, the Anna Lindh Foundation's publication 'The Potential of Arts for Intercultural Dialogue' (2007) provided examples of art-based approaches to dialogue, and in the media field. A 'Mapping of Translation in the Euro-Mediterranean' (2011) was developed in partnership with Transeuropéennes (France) and involved a variety of publishing and translation institutions; as a result a new ALF translation programme has been created in partnership with the French government.

'Dawrak Guidebook on Youth in Local Dialogue' is an online mapping initiative on the different typologies of youth involvement in diverse aspects of local dialogue in their communities. The Guidebook was the outcome of two Dawrak trainings, held in Morocco (Maghreb region) and Lebanon (Mashreq region).

- 'How to Cope with Diversity at School' was published in Arabic, English and French and has been disseminated to schools and education networks in more than 20 countries
  - 'Dialogue in Action', the ALF's book for the 2008 Year of Dialogue between Cultures was launched at the first Euro-Med Ministerial on Culture and Intercultural Dialogue
  - The Anna Lindh Report is being published every 3 years and involves a network of 40 cross-cultural experts from more than 20 Euro-Mediterranean countries
  - The ALF's Toolkit 'Conflict Resolution' and book 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' provide case studies for NGOs working in the field of peace
  - The ALF handbook on 'Intercultural Citizenship Education in the Euro-Med' and its complementary resource 'Intercultural Citizenship Education in Arab countries' will have a common digital version including a database of excursions for educators

Website and Online Tools

As an institution working for dialogue across more than 40 countries, the Anna Lindh Foundation has invested in the development of new media tools to promote cross-cultural communication and provide innovative resources for civil societies.

The ALF Website Portal annalindhfoundation.org is an open platform presented in English, French and Arabic languages, providing access to information and analyses on intercultural issues, as well as networking opportunities and resources for NGOs and civil society groups. Features of the Portal include: a 'partner search' database with access to more than 4000 organisations; an 'intercultural library', with over 1000 articles and publications on cross-cultural issues; 43 National Civil Society Network pages with information on the national activities; a database of granted projects; ALF digital publications and resources; a media centre including photos and videos. The website includes internal management tools that are used to support project development and to share information within the ALF's Headquarters and with the Heads of National Networks and civil society organisations.

The latest Website was launched in January 2014 after a close consultation process with ALF National Networks. The architecture of the new portal highlights ALF achievements in its main working fields: Education, Culture and Media and resources for civil society organisations such as Grants, Awards, Networks, Report and Analysis. Successfully applying a 'digital-first' policy, the Foundation has increased its online outreach to new audiences, especially youth and civil society leaders. In the last three years, ALF has focused on social media coverage such as livestreaming, live-tweeting, Facebook campaigns and user engagement of its key events such as ALF Forum, Dawrak trainings and other activities. As a result, ALF social media channels have gained a significant increase in users: over 18.300 'Anna Lindh Foundation' Facebook likes and over 5000 @AnnaLindh Twitter followers. Several programmes and initiatives have Facebook groups moderated by ALF staff members such as Dawrak, Journalist Award and others. Most ALF Networks have established Facebook pages in their languages.

In the framework of the ALF Report on Intercultural Trends and Social Change, the Foundation launched the online 'Anna Lindh Digest', with a selection of news and articles on cross-cultural affairs and a review of news items related to the social, cultural and institutional dimension of trans-Mediterranean relations. Through its grant programme, the ALF has also supported the development of new online media tools and resources, including the first 'Euro-Med On-line Radio', the 'Tahqiq Sahafi' cultural reporting platform with Babel Med, the Euro-Med Academy's for Young Journalists (EMAJ) magazine.

The person is wearing a grey sweater and a ring on their finger. The background is slightly blurred, showing a red apple and a dark surface.
- More than 1.500.000 page views in the ALF website each year, and more than 500.000 visits per year from over 60 countries
  - 1.200 pages published on the ALF website in English, French and Arabic
  - Anna Lindh Digest is distributed on average every month to the ALF database of over 10,000 contacts
  - The ALF Bloggers Toolkit was developed with the involvement of bloggers from 17 of the Euro-Mediterranean countries
  - Live web broadcasting of ALF regional events, including the and Anna Lindh Forum in Marseille (April 2013), Dawrak Egyptian Network Empowerment meeting in Cairo (October 2013), Anna Lindh website launch at Board of Governors meeting in Athens (January 2014)
  - Over 18.300 Facebook likes and over 5.000 Twitter followers
  - Training on new media tools delivered to ALF staff, project leaders and National Network members

ALF Networks in 43 Countries

Albania

The members of the Albanian Network of the Anna Lindh Foundation are working for intercultural dialogue across the fields of migration, youth, education and media. The Network is coordinated by the Albanian Forum for the Alliance of Civilisations (AFALC), which was appointed by the Albanian Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 2008.

The National Network was established following the entry of Albania into the Union for the Mediterranean framework in 2008. Members participated in the ALF's 2009 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' campaign, including launching 'Play for Peace', involving several schools of Tirana in sporting activities as a way to foster dialogue between youth from different marginalised groups, such as Roma and orphan children. The same year, the Network Head co-organised in Tirana the ALF's regional meeting on 'Prospects for Inter-religious Coexistence', officially inaugurated by the President of the Republic of Albania. The following year, the first Anna Lindh Report on Intercultural Trends was presented in Tirana in partnership with UNESCO. The Albanian Network members have also launched the publication entitled 'Women and Religion' on the role of women in the three major religious communities and socio-political life, and the campaign 'Cultures Talk'. In 2012, members were involved in 'Mediterranean Network: Step One Lampedusa' which included research on issues of Albanian emigrants in Italy, and in 2014, the initiative 'Open Forum' explored issues of cultural identity of Albanian migrants in Euro-Med countries.

Key Figures

- The Albanian Network is composed of 21 NGOs
- 13 new projects mobilised by ALF through the '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign
- 45 participants from 21 countries gathered for one of the preparatory meetings of the Anna Lindh Forum 2010 in Tirana inaugurated by the President of the Republic of Albania
- 250 children and teenagers from several schools of Tirana brought together during the 'Play for Peace' project in the framework of the ALF Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges Initiative
- 5 civil society organisations represented at the Anna Lindh Forum 2013 in Marseille
- 1000 people participated in the Gallup's survey for the Anna Lindh Report 2014
- Besnik Mustafaj, President of AFALC, is a member of the Advisory Council of the Anna Lindh Foundation

Algeria

The members of the Algerian Network of Anna Lindh Foundation work for intercultural dialogue in the fields of culture, youth, migration, education and media. The Network is coordinated by the 'Association Etoile Culturelle d'Akbou', elected by the members in 2012.

Following the establishment of the Network in 2006, the ALF organised the 'North-South Mediterranean Dialogue' conference, in partnership with the International European Movement and the Bibliotheca Alexandrina, which resulted in the 'Algiers Declaration for a Common Vision of the Future'. In 2008, Network members actively participated in the ALF's '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign for the Euro-Med Year of Intercultural Dialogue, including launching the local initiative 'Sahara Nights'. The main partnerships developed through the ALF Grants Scheme have been with CSOs in France, Italy and Morocco.

Since 2011, the Algerian Network has been involved in the ALF's programmes 'Young Arab Voices', with an established national debating hub, and 'Dawrak: Citizens for Dialogue'. In 2012, the ALF organised in Algiers a debate on 'Participation in Public Life' involving 40 participants from Algeria, Belgium, Italy, Morocco and Poland, and in 2014, more than 50 Network members were involved in a Euro-Med Meeting on preparing a Guidebook on Youth in Local Dialogue, organised with the Ministry of Culture. During this period, the Network also launched national actions with ALF support on 'Awareness-raising activities on children's rights' and 'Capacity-building for Algerian associations'.

Key Figures

- 128 civil society organisations are involved in the Algerian Network
- 26 Algerian civil society organisations were either leaders or partners in transnational intercultural projects supported by the Anna Lindh Foundation
- France, Morocco and Italy are the countries that Algerian civil society organisations most partnered with through the Anna Lindh Grants Programme
- 12 new projects mobilised by ALF through the '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign
- 400 participants attended the congress 'North-South Mediterranean Dialogue' in Algiers organised by the ALF in cooperation with the International European Movement, the Algeria Committee and the Bibliotheca Alexandrina
- Algerian journalist Mekioussa Chekir received The Anna Lindh Journalist Award 2011
- 21 civil society organisations represented at the Anna Lindh Forum 2013 in Marseille
- Algerians Malek Chebel, Aïcha Kassoul and Sabria Boukadoum have been members of the ALF Advisory Committee (2005-2008) and Advisory Council (2008-2011), (2012-2014) respectively
- 24 Algerian participants have taken part in Dawrak Capacity Building trainings

Austria

The Austrian Institute for International Affairs, an independent, non-profit think-tank, was elected by members as ALF Network Head in December 2011. The Network includes think-tanks, foundations, media bodies, academic and education institutions.

Since its establishment, the Network has actively participated in the ALF Grants Scheme, with Denmark, Israel and Palestine among the countries most partnered with. For the ALF's first region-wide campaign '1001 Actions for Dialogue', the Network led new actions including 'Dialogue in Practice' which was organised by the World Public Forum on Dialogue of Civilizations and consisted of debates on cross cultural issues such as religion and its relationship to politics. As part of the ALF's 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges', Network member 'Intermedia 21 Association' for the promotion of media diversity and global issues, launched with ALF the project called 'It's all in the Headline', which trained 62 participants on how to become critical media consumers. The same year, the Network organised the Regional ALF Training Seminar on 'Reinforcing projects development capacity', which gathered 30 participants from 12 Euro-Med countries.

The Network has pioneered in recent years a series of national common actions. Firstly, 'Unrest, Protest and Revolution: Sea Change in the Mediterranean' focused on an exchange between women and youth activists in the Southern Mediterranean and those in Austria. Secondly, the 'Contest for the Public Space Building' centred on a series of public events with migrant communities and youth.

Key Figures

- 35 civil society organisations are involved in the Austrian Network
- 12 Austrian civil society organisations were either leaders or partners in transnational intercultural projects supported by the Anna Lindh Foundation

- 12 new projects mobilised by ALF through the '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign
- Martin Traxl, Austrian journalist, received the Anna Lindh Journalist Award in 2009
- 4 civil society organisations represented at the Anna Lindh Forum 2013 in Barcelona
- The Klangraum Mittelmeer Concert was organised in 2006 with the Ludwig Salvator Society in Vienna on the occasion of the ALF Austrian Network 'Open Day'
- Heidi Dumreicher was Austrian member of the Anna Lindh Advisory Council

Sea change in the Mediterranean
Individual action and social movements

The Mediterranean has become an epicenter for a global social and political crisis and a laboratory for new forms of social and political mobilization. The reasons for protests in Tunisia or Egypt were not that different from those which urged people to go into the streets in Sofia, Madrid or Nicosia. Departing from the idea of a common systemic, political, social and economic crisis scholars, journalists, filmmakers and activists from the region and beyond will be studying and discussing the links between the crises, the effects on societies and forms of action.

Belgium

The MEDEA Institute coordinates the Belgian Network that brings together organisations active in the areas of coexistence, education, art, culture, migration, youth, human rights and international relations. The Network conducts joint action within the members, with other National Networks, and participates in initiatives for exchange and cooperation of the ALF.

In 2012-2013, members of the Network developed the project «We Tube, Smash shots in a clip!», a video competition for young people between 15 and 20 years who aimed at breaking down prejudices and cultural stereotypes that surround them by making video clips. Youngsters produced a number of videos, humorous and sometimes provocative and smart, about issues of cultural diversity.

In 2014 the Belgian Network and the winners of the video contest participated in a large gathering on the theme «Art, Instrument & Expression of Social Transformations» in Taroudant, Morocco. Through discussions, workshops in schools, spaces for dialogue, street performances and art exhibitions representatives of seven Euro-Med countries shared their thoughts and best practices on art and social change. This meeting has responded well to the need to provide spaces for exchange and creating new projects.

In the same year the Network organized a panel discussion on the dialogue of cultures in the Euro-Mediterranean region in the Belgian Parliament. This event was an opportunity to discuss both the issues of social change in the Euro-Mediterranean region, through the findings of the latest Anna Lindh Report, but also to present the concrete actions both recent years by the Belgian network and its partners in intercultural dialogue.

Key Figures

- 87 civil society organisations have been involved in the Belgian Network
- 19 Belgian civil society organisations were either leaders or partners in transnational intercultural projects supported by the Anna Lindh Foundation

Bosnia and Herzegovina

The ALF Network in Bosnia and Herzegovina has established new partnerships with civil society groups in countries including France, Germany, Italy, Montenegro, Palestine, Slovenia, Sweden and Turkey. The Network is coordinated by the Youth Resource Centre (ORC) Tuzla, which was re-elected by members in June 2012.

The Network is one of the youngest Anna Lindh National Networks, having been established in 2008 following Bosnia and Herzegovina's entry to the Union for the Mediterranean. In 2009, the Network launched an awareness campaign with ALF network support entitled 'Youth: Responsible-Tolerant', focused on promoting anti-discrimination among local communities in 20 cities. Between 2009 and 2010, the ALF granted project 'Intercultural Understanding Everyday ICU Everyday' took place in Turkey and Bosnia and Herzegovina, with Network member SEEYN playing a leading role as a main partner; the project, which focused on promoting cross-cultural relations through youth work, involved 40 NGOs through a series of seminars.

The Network has also been involved in developing for publication a new 'good practices' booklet which brings together project ideas and case studies from across the Bosnian and Herzegovina Anna Lindh Network. In 2012, the action 'Increase Knowledge-Celebrate Diversity' was carried out within the country's two entities of Federation of BiH and Republic of Srpska. In 2014, a three day conference entitled 'ALF B&H Forum' brought together members with ALF Network Heads from the Mediterranean region and local NGOs and political leaders; workshops centred on media and public opinion, gender equality, and local civic activism.

Key Figures

- 41 civil society organisations have been involved in the Bosnian and Herzegovina Network
- 3 civil society organisations were either leaders or partners in transnational intercultural projects supported by the Anna Lindh Foundation
- Turkey, Montenegro and Bulgaria are among the countries that the Network most partnered with through the Anna Lindh Grant Programme
- 20 cities across the country involved in the awareness campaign entitled 'Youth: Responsible-Tolerant' to promote tolerance, mutual work and anti-discrimination among local communities
- Involvement of the Network in the development of the 'good practices' booklet
- 5 civil society organisations represented at the Anna Lindh Forum 2010 held in Barcelona
- The project 'Theatre Caravan without Borders' has been developed with the support of the Anna Lindh Grant Programme

Bulgaria

The Bulgarian Network established partnerships through ALF support with civil society groups in countries including Egypt, Israel, Palestine, Spain, Morocco, Cyprus, Jordan, Algeria and Turkey. The Network is coordinated by the International Initiatives for Cooperation Association (IIC), which was re-elected in June 2013 by members.

The Bulgarian Network mobilised several actions, and partnered with other National Networks on common initiatives as part of the ALF's '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign, launched in 2008. The Network also carried out a selection of activities for the ALF's 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' initiative in 2009, including: 'Lessons for Peace', which is a project gathering 12 specialists (teachers, psychologists, intercultural trainers) for the production of a booklet on peaceteaching methods in schools; and the project 'To be a Day, To be Peace', presented by UNESCO Club-Bulgaria. In 2010, the 'Sea of Words' creative writing workshop took place in Sofia with young writers from around the region who had been awarded; the workshop resulted in the production of a series of new stories which had a thematic focus on peace and intercultural coexistence.

The National Network launched between 2012 and 2013 a major national action entitled 'Back to Back: Euro-Mediterranean Web-Radio', presenting a communication platform for members' activities. The online radio station involved youth and civil society groups in media programming with the support of trained journalists, with broadcasting at a local and international level.

Croatia

The Croatian Network was established through the ALF Grants Programme. New partnerships with civil society organisations in countries including Estonia, Finland, Greece, Israel, Morocco and Palestine. It is coordinated by the National Foundation for Civil Society Development since its appointment by the Croatian Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 2008.

For the ALF's 2009 Initiative 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges', the Network launched a number of new projects including: 'Cross-Border Cooperation for a Brighter Future', presented by the DESA organisation in Dubrovnik, which involved debates, presentations and workshops about sustainable development; the action 'Future in our Hands', presented by Open Academy Step by Step organisation, with six NGOs from Croatia, FYROM, Serbia, Slovenia, Montenegro and Bosnia and Herzegovina who jointly implemented a 3-day training for 150 teacher trainers to establish new partnerships and exchange good practices aimed at enabling equal access to quality education.

The ALF's Euro-Mediterranean exhibition 'Faces of the Mediterranean' opened in Dubrovnik in October 2010, on the occasion of the meeting of senior officials of the Euro-Med Partnership; the exhibition was a common action of the ALF's National Networks in Croatia, Montenegro, Greece, Lebanon, Bulgaria and Cyprus. This was followed in 2012 and 2014 with the artistic initiative 'Common Values: The Signs with Human Dimension'; it centred on visualising positive values through the production and exhibition of road signs in urban spaces.

The ALF Network in Cyprus has been involved in launching and partnering with several large-scale intercultural dialogue programmes with civil society groups in countries including Egypt, Morocco and Spain; the coordinator of the Network is the Cyprus Center for European and International Affairs (University of Nicosia), appointed by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and re-elected by members.

In collaboration with the National Network, the ALF hosted in Cyprus a number of Euro-Mediterranean meetings and conferences, commencing in 2006 with the Euro-Med Youth Forum on Intercultural and Interfaith Dialogue. In 2007, the regional training course on 'Cultural Conflict Resolution and Project Development' took place in Nicosia with more than 70 teachers and youth workers from 32 Euro-Med countries. In 2008, the Network hosted the 'Sea of Words' regional workshop on creative writing, bringing together 30 winning writers from 24 Euro-Med countries, and coordinated the first 'Dialogue Night' at the Castle of Limassol with youth from the Greek and Turkish-Cypriot community. It also played an active role in the ALF's 2010 multi-country photography exhibition 'Faces of the Mediterranean'.

In 2012, Cyprus hosted the 11th Heads of National Network Meeting, with civil society leaders from 42 Euro-Med countries, and launched the national initiative 'Dialogue Days: Living on the Edge' including a multi-communal cultural festival. A follow-up action 'Intercultural Dialogue in Crisis: Lending a Voice to NGOs' was launched in 2014.

Czech Republic

The Czech Network is coordinated by the Institute of International Relations based in Prague, which works in the fields of international politics, security and economic relations.

In 2008, the Czech Network launched a 'Month of Dialogue and Debate' as part of the Anna Lindh Foundation's '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign, with the main aim of reinforcing positive relations between Czech and Arab communities. The programme included a series of Arab film screenings and debates with young people, and a children's exhibition on 'The Image of the Arab World' which was promoted nation-wide by the United Nations office in Prague. The following year, in October 2009, the Czech Network organised a seminar about the future of Palestinian-Israeli relations with a photography exhibition by Jana Hunterová and a public debate on Islam in the Czech Republic.

In April 2010, the Czech Network organised a national tour for the winner of the Euro-Med Dialogue Award 'Combatants for Peace', a joint Israeli-Palestinian civil movement, with debates involving university students and foreign communities. In 2011, the Network also coordinated a series of cultural events focused on the Euro-Mediterranean region ('Dialogue through Cultural Feeling') including an evening of Arab poetry-reading, and in 2012 a series of actions on 'The Perception of the Arab Spring revolutionary events in the Czech Republic'. In 2014, the initiative 'Arab and Muslim Community in the Czech Republic and EU countries' included several research and dialogue activities on migration issues.

Denmark

The Danish Network members are involved in art and culture, education and research, media and communication, refugees and humanitarian work, religion and interfaith dialogue, youth work, gender issues and human rights work. Since 2005 the Network has been coordinated by the Danish Center for Culture and Development (CKU).

In 2010, as part of the 'My World Images' festival, the Danish Network organised with ALF support the theatre play 'Do you know my world?' with local youth, a photo exhibition 'Modernity in our lives' with young Palestinians, and a 'Speed Dating' networking initiative with civil society groups. In the framework of the Danish-Arab Partnership Programme, a series of events were organised at the start of 2011, including the 'Arab Domino' which debated the social uprisings in Egypt and Tunisia and the role of Danish NGOs in supporting the process of democratic transition in the Arab region.

A major event supported by ALF in 2012 was the 'Night of (inter) Culture'. As part of the annual night of free cultural activities in Copenhagen, the event presented the Egyptian hip-hop group Arabian Nights among other hip-hop artists. Furthermore the International People's School hosted an ALF-supported seminar on how to develop knowledge sharing mechanisms for organisations working within the MENA region. Most recently an evening seminar was organised by the Head of Network which shed light on the Syrian media-vacuum with presentations by a Syrian media activist and journalist.

Egypt

The ALF Network in Egypt works across the fields of culture and arts, community development, human rights and environment. The Network in Egypt is coordinated by Maat Foundation for Peace Development and Human Rights, elected in June 2013 with an established steering committee.

In collaboration with the National Network, several high-profile international events have been held in Egypt as part of the Anna Lindh Foundation's Programme, including: the Euro-Mediterranean University Forum, with academic representatives from over 30 Euro-Med countries in Alexandria in 2007 and the 2nd Euro-Med Research Souk organised by EMUNI in Alexandria in 2010; the presentation of the winners of the 101 Books Literary Competition at Cairo International Book Fair in 2009; three editions of the Farah El Bahr Festival in 2005, 2009 and 2010 and the first Euro-Med Dialogue Night event in 2008. The Foundation also organised a teacher training seminar on 'Religious Diversity' at the Goethe Institute in Alexandria in 2006 in partnership with the Council of Europe and the joint concert 'An Evening of Music' between Mohamed Mounir and Maria del Mar Bonnet at the Cairo Opera House in March 2009.

2012 was also an active year for the Egyptian National Network: it started with 'Ecrire Le Mediterranee', with the French cultural centre in April; then the first Arabs Heads of Networks Meeting that took place in September; while in November the 'Dardasha Iskandarani' gathering was a platform for young people to exchange views and perspectives on issues linked to social participation. The following year, in October 2013, the ALF presented its programme in Egypt on the occasion of the Network Dawrak initiative 'Empowering Civil Society on Intercultural Dialogue'.

Estonia

The Anna Lindh Foundation's Network in Estonia has involved civil society groups and organisations who are working in the fields of education, youth, religious issues and academic research and cooperation. The Network is coordinated by Mitteilundusuühing Ethical Links, following its election in 2013.

Through the Foundation's grant programme, Estonian Network members have developed new partnerships with other members from ALF Networks, including Croatia, Egypt, Finland, Greece, Israel, Italy, Jordan, Morocco, Palestine and Sweden. The Network also actively took part in the '1001 Actions for Dialogue', the ALF's campaign for the Euro-Mediterranean Year of Dialogue between Cultures in 2008. In the framework of the campaign, the Estonian Network launched the 'Baltic Mediterranean Spring' which brought together in May 2008 young people from both the Baltic region and the Southern Mediterranean area for a programme of cross-cultural workshops about Euro-Med policies; the model was relaunched between 2009 and 2010.

The winner of the Anna Lindh Foundation's Euro-Med Award for Dialogue through art, the young Lebanese photographer Rima Maroun, had the opportunity to display her award-winning exhibition 'Les Murmures' in Tallin from mid-May to mid-June 2009. With the Estonian Network member Rääma Noorte Ühing Noorus, and through the support of the Anna Lindh Foundation, the National Network was also involved in organising the Baltic Forum of May 2011.

Key Figures

- 15 civil society organisations are involved in the Estonian Network of the Anna Lindh Foundation
- 6 Estonian civil society organisations led and partnered in transnational intercultural projects supported by the Foundation
- Egypt, Finland and Israel are among the countries that the Estonian Network partnered with through the Anna Lindh Grants Programme
- 5 new projects were mobilised by ALF through the '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign and launched by members of the Estonian Network
- In May 2010 and 2011, the Estonian Network organised the cultural event 'Baltic Mediterranean Spring Festival', with the aim of introducing Mediterranean cultures, food and traditions
- In April 2014, in the framework of 'Arab Journalist Routes', Lebanese journalist Sophie Chamas took part in a series of roundtables and meetings organised by Estonian School of Diplomacy in Tallin
- 6 civil society organisations were represented at the Anna Lindh Forum 2013 in Marseille

Finland

The members of the Finnish Network of ALF have been involved in transnational projects supported by the ALF with civil society groups in Croatia, Denmark, Estonia, Greece, Israel, Morocco and Palestine; the Foundation of the Finnish Institute in the Middle East (FIME) has been coordinating the Network since July 2014.

In 2006, under the Finnish Presidency of the European Union, the Network hosted the annual meeting of the Anna Lindh Foundation's Heads of Network, with civil society representatives from more than 30 Euro-Mediterranean countries.

In 2007, the Finnish Head of Network organised the training seminar for the Nordic Networks in Helsinki. In the aftermath of the 2009 Gaza War, the Network coordinated an international colloquium in Helsinki, with ALF financial support and the involvement of ALF Dialogue Award Winners 'Combatants for Peace'. The Network, in partnership with the Portuguese Head of Network, hosted the photography exhibition 'On This and the Other Side - Perceptions of a One Week Journey in Israel and Palestine' in 2011. Finland was a key supporter of the preparation of 2014's first Dawrak: Moltaqa.

As a common action of the Network, the first Middle Eastern Film and Arts Festival was held in Finland in October 2014. As a part of Dawrak, a rewedged young Egyptian journalist, Ethar El-Katatney, participated in the seminar 'The Changing Role of the Media in the Contemporary Middle East' in September 2014 as a speaker. In addition, a representative from the Network member 'Forum for Culture and Religion (Margareta Hautaniemi)' participated in the 'Creative Entrepreneurship, Active Citizenship: Opportunities for EuroMed Youth', a networking event that gathered Euro-Med youth from ALF Networks in September 2014.

France

The French Network has launched and partnered in over 55 cross-cultural projects financed by the ALF with civil society partners in countries including Algeria, Egypt, Italy, Lebanon, Morocco, Tunisia and Turkey. The Network is coordinated by Le Forum Femmes Méditerranée, with an elected Steering Committee.

One of the major events the French Network regularly partnered in since 2006 is the annual 'Babel Med Music Festival', three days of artistic exchange and debate which brings together musicians from across the Mediterranean and wider world. In 2006, the ALF was also represented in Strasbourg at the Council of Europe teacher training schemes on education for democratic citizenship. In 2008, France hosted the meeting of the Head of National Networks in the city of Nice.

In 2009, the ALF in partnership with French member Solidarite Laïque, organised a seminar on 'Middle East: Art of Peace Building and Dialogue' with civil society actors and artists on the Israeli-Palestinian issue. The Anna Lindh Forum preparation meeting on youth was also coordinated in Strasbourg (2010) in partnership with the Council of Europe on Euro-Med Youth Policies on Intercultural Dialogue. Moreover, in 2011, the Network has prepared a 'Ville et Diversité' seminar in the framework of the common operation and a 'Tour de France' of 'Combatants for Peace'.

In 2013, the Anna Lindh Mediterranean Forum was held in European Capital of Culture Marseille, with more than 1500 representatives of civil society and institutions. Also in 2013, the theme of the Network common operation was 'Voies de la Mer(e)', while in 2014 the theme was 'L'intelligence des langues' with two key events, the opening in September in Marseille of 'Surfers for Peace' and in October at Perpignan the organisation of the 'Fête des langues du Monde'.

Germany

The German Network collaborated on large scale cross-cultural dialogue programmes with civil society partners in countries including Egypt, Israel, Lebanon, Palestine and Turkey. The Network is headed by the Goethe-Institute, with ZAK (Centre for Cultural and General Studies at the Karlsruhe Institute of Technology) as elected coordinator since 2012.

In its opening phase, the ALF took part in the Council of Europe's flagship Pestalozzi Programme for training education professionals through seminars in Donaueschingen, and in 2007 Germany hosted the annual Heads of Network meeting in Berlin in the framework of the EU Presidency. In 2010, the Goethe-Institut headquarters in Munich hosted the meeting 'Valuing Diversity, Understanding Migration', the final preparation meeting for the first Anna Lindh Forum. The same year Network members prepared a tour for Euro-Med Dialogue Award winners 'Combatants for Peace', and in 2012 the ALF Journalist Award was hosted in Berlin at the Allianz Cultural Foundation's headquarters.

A series of events have been launched by the German Network with ALF support including: 'The Mediterranean on the Spot' (2011); 'Mediterranean on the Spot - Migration and Flight' (2012); 'Mediterranean on the Spot - Diversity in practice and its limitations' (2013) and the follow-up 'Mediterranean on the Spot: Encounters' (2014), which was presented at the annual 'Bürgerfest des Bundespräsidenten' hosted by the German President. During this period, the Network established thematic clusters among members on 'Science', 'Arts and Culture' and 'Migration', and, in 2014, organised a special event for the launch in Germany of the new Anna Lindh Report; Network coordinator Caroline Robertson-von Trotha was a key contributor to the Report analysis.

Key Figures

The Greek Network has been coordinated since 2005 by the Hellenic Foundation for Culture (HFC) in Athens, and is co-headed today by the youth NGO, United Societies of Balkans (USB).

The Greek Network organised dialogue actions, ranging from awareness-making activities on Balkan cultures to Mediterranean food projects, and coordinated with the Ministry of Culture the Euro-Med Dialogue Night in Athens with more than 2000 participants. In the framework of the first Euro-Med Ministerial Meeting on Culture, the ALF held the Journalist Award Ceremony 2008 and co-organised the regional meeting 'Dialogue in Action' on intercultural dialogue which brought together media and representatives of civil society from 30 countries. In 2009, the Network hosted the ALF regional training seminar for multipliers in Thessaloniki which focused on capacity-building for intercultural dialogue projects, and ALF hosted in Rhodes 'Creativity, Mobility and Dialogue'. The Greek Network was also represented in the 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' mission to Israel and Palestine after the Gaza War.

During 2010 and 2011, the Greek Network hosted the multi-country ALF exhibition 'Faces of the Mediterranean' in partnership with the ALF Networks of Bulgaria, Croatia, Cyprus, Greece, Lebanon and Montenegro, which focused on scenes from everyday life in the Mediterranean. Specific national common actions developed by the Network included 'The ALF compass of Greece', rolled-out across four regions, and 'Heritage and Youth under Crisis' linked to the Thessaloniki European Youth Capital. The Greek ALF Network co-organised with the ALF Secretariat an international event 'Creative Entrepreneurship, Active Citizenship: Opportunities for EuroMed Youth', in order to gather youth from ALF Networks from the Euro-Med region in the framework of the European Youth Capital, Thessaloniki 2014.

Hungary

The ALF Hungarian Network has been involved in launching new programmes with civil society groups in countries including Jordan, Lebanon, Turkey, Czech Republic, Austria, Israel and Poland. The Network is managed by the Palantír Film Foundation, which was first elected in October 2013.

The first Euro-Med event coordinated by ALF in Hungary was the 'Anna Lindh Training for Trainers' seminar on project development and partnership-building, which took place in Budapest in April 2007. The following year, the youth activity 'Euro-Mediterranean Training Course for Multipliers active in Human Rights Education and Conflict Resolution' was organised in Hungary in the joint framework on youth partnership established by the Council of Europe and the European Commission. As a follow-up to the training course, ALF launched its publication 'Good Practices for Trainers on Conflict Resolution and Cultural Cooperation' in English, Arabic and French.

In 2008, the Hungarian Network actively participated in the ALF's '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign, and hosted the photo exhibition 'Les Murmurs' produced by young Lebanese artist and ALF's Euro-Med Dialogue Award Winner, Rima Maroun. With the ALF support, the Network has also launched the national actions 'Dialogue Road', with a series of music concerts and documentary film screenings on cross-cultural issues, and the three-day 'Intercultural Interactive Festival' which included story-telling workshops with Hungarian citizens of different cultural backgrounds.

Key Figures

- 63 civil society organisations are involved in the Hungarian Network
- 7 Hungarian civil society organisations were either leaders or partners in transnational intercultural projects supported by the Anna Lindh Foundation
- 25 new projects mobilised by ALF through the '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign
- Czech Republic, Austria, Israel and Poland are the countries that Hungarian civil society organisations most partnered with through the Anna Lindh Grant Programme
- In October 2008, the Anna Lindh Foundation organised the training course for multipliers active in Human Rights Education and Conflict Resolution in the youth centre in Budapest
- 1000 people participated in the Gallup's survey for the Anna Lindh Report 2010
- 6 Hungarian civil society organisations were represented at the Anna Lindh Forum 2013 in Marseille

Ireland

The ALF Network in Ireland launched and partnered in trans-Mediterranean Initiatives related to conflict resolution and peace culture, taking place mainly in the fields of education and artistic creation. The Network is coordinated by Triskel Arts Centre, one of the oldest multi-disciplinary arts centres in Ireland. Triskel was elected by members in 2009, reconfirmed in 2013 and re-elected at a network meeting in Belfast on 6 September 2014.

In 2006, the appointed Irish Head institution, Dublin City University, was among the first to benefit from the ALF internship programme to support its initial network development, and in 2008 played an active role in the '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign which included bringing the Palestinian hip-hop group Ramallah to Dublin. In 2008 a series of activities entitled 'STOP JUDGING ME!' was organized by the Cork Diocesan Youth Council in the context of the 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' Campaign and in 2009 The National Youth Council of Ireland held a training workshop on 'Funding Development Education in Youth Work'. In 2010 Irish CSO leaders took part in the ALF Meeting on Non-Violence held in Napoli with former combatants, social activists and cultural operators from different Euro-Med countries.

Common actions undertaken by the Irish Network include 'Hip Hop to Cork', the culmination of a national programme of youth music workshops; 'Understanding Islam in Irish Education' involving a seminar with trainee teachers and Network members was organised by the Chester Beatty Library; and 'Art as an Instrument and Expression of Social Change', an internetwork activity with Spain, Morocco, Belgium, Tunisia and Sweden that took place in Taroudant, Morocco and gave the opportunity to 14 members of the Irish network to share good practices.

Key Figures

- 56 civil society organisations are involved in the Irish Network
- In May 2013 in Dublin, on the occasion of World Press Freedom Day, Anna Lindh Foundation in collaboration with the Irish Network organised a conference 'Media and Intercultural Relations in the Mediterranean Region'
- Seven Irish civil society organisations were represented at the Anna Lindh Forum 2013 in Marseille
- Irish members participated in the Gallup's survey for the Anna Lindh Report 2014, in the DAWRAK exchange programme and also in the Alexandria Education Convention and the Thessaloniki Creative Entrepreneurship, Active Citizenship: Opportunities for Euro-Med Youth
- Ann Luttrell is a member of the Advisory Council of the Anna Lindh Foundation
- Around 1000 citizens were surveyed in the 2014 edition of The Anna Lindh Report on Intercultural Trends. The Irish Times covered the launch of the Report

Israel

The ALF Network in Israel has launched and partnered in trans-Mediterranean intercultural dialogue programmes on peace and coexistence, media, interfaith dialogue and Mediterranean identity. The Network is coordinated by the Van Leer Jerusalem Institute.

In 2006, the Israeli Network was involved in organising information and training meetings with members from across the country, with a focus on networking and partnership-building in the Euro-Med region. In the framework of the '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign 2008, grassroot actions – including the initiative 'My Grandfather's Heritage' – focused on addressing issues of cultural heritage with young people. In 2009, following the launch of the ALF's 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' initiative, Israeli civil society developed local and regional cooperation projects, including 'Negev Unplugged! Bedouin and Jewish citizens learn together about sustainable development'; 'Return to Haifa'; and the large-scale cultural event 'Border Line'.

In 2010, the initiative 'Euro-Mediterranean Abrahamic Forum', led by an Israeli Network member with partners from Belgium, Jordan, Palestine and Poland, came to fruition with a series of activities involving religious leaders and interfaith practitioners, focused on reinforcing harmonious relations between Christians, Jews and Muslims. Israeli civil society has also been recognized through the ALF's Award Programmes: Journalists Yoav Stern, Gideon Levy, Lisa Goldman and Izhar Beer are winners of the Anna Lindh Journalist Prize for reporting across cultures, and the organisations Combatants for Peace and Ecopeace, which are both co-led by Israeli citizens, have won the ALF Euro-Med Dialogue Award. National Common Actions have been launched including 'Women, Environment, Film' and 'Reclaiming the City Square: Urban Protests in the Mediterranean'.

Italy

The Italian Network is co-managed by Fondazione Mediterraneo, Paralleli - Istituto Euromediterraneo Del Nord Ovest and Fispmed. 2014 saw the launch of RIDE, with national NGO status, to support the long term sustainability of Network activities.

In December 2005, the ALF organised in Naples, in partnership with the Italian Network Head, the first 'Euro-Med Youth Workshop' with 70 young people. The following year, in 2006, the ALF and Network co-launched the first edition of the Euro-Med Dialogue Award, a region-wide prize to raise the visibility of cross-cultural leaders. For 2008's '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign, over 200 dialogue actions were developed, ranging from theatre events and story-telling workshops in Lecce to dance festivals in Rome. In the framework of '1001 Actions', the ALF also organised in Italy the Euro-Med Youth Forum on Water and Intercultural Dialogue, and the Network hosted in Naples the Advisory Council meeting.

For ALF's 2009 Initiative, 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges', the Network launched 'The Bridge for Euro-Med Dialogue' which consisted of several Initiatives for peace and cultural diversity. In October 2010, the ALF and Italian Network Head co-organised the seminar on non-violence with social activists, educators and former combatants from Euro-Med countries. Key national common actions have included 'Mediterranean Network: Step One Lampedusa' and 'Mediterranean Networking: Towards a Common Mediterranean Identity'.

In 2014, the Italian Presidency of the European Council, the Fondazione Mediterraneo and the Italian Network played host to the Anna Lindh Foundation's 10th Anniversary landmark gathering, which brought together to Napoli the Foundation's main institutional bodies, programme beneficiaries and partners.

Key Figures

The Jordanian Network is coordinated by the Royal Institute for Inter-Faith Studies (RIIFS), appointed Head of Network by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in November 2010. The Institute was also a runner-up in the first edition of the Anna Lindh Foundation's Euro-Med Dialogue Award launched in 2006 on the theme of interfaith dialogue and voted upon by civil society Networks in more than 30 countries.

At the start of 2007, the ALF organised in Amman, in partnership with the Network, a national training for NGOs and civil society groups. The ALF also organised in Amman in 2007 a seminar on 'Linguistic Awareness of Cultures' and the teacher training workshop on 'How to Use New Teaching Materials on Religious Diversity in the Classroom'. During this period, Member organisations also participated in the ALF Grants scheme, building new partnerships in over 30 Euro-Med countries and launching dialogue initiatives. In May 2011, the Jordanian Network organised its first common action Alwan Baladna festival in collaboration with Network members and under the patronage of HRH Prince El Hassan bin Talal. The same month saw the ALF organise the first Euro-Med High-Level Meeting of TV Leaders at the Dead Sea in Jordan.

In the framework of the Dawrak: Citizens for Dialogue, the Network Empowerment meeting was organised in 2012, with the participation of Syrians, and the Young Arab Voices programme launched a training of trainers in Amman on debating skills. In 2013, the Jordanian Rabeea Najm Al-Din Al-Naser, the founder and manager of House of Tales and Music (HTM), was elected by the members of the Anna Lindh National Networks to be the winner of this year's Euro-Med Dialogue Award under the theme 'Migrants as Ambassadors for Mutual Understanding'.

The Network since 2011 pioneered the Active Citizenship Programme with activities in Amman, Ajloun, Jerash, Zaatari Camps and Mafraq.

Latvia

The Latvian Network of the Anna Lindh Foundation works across the fields of culture, media, education and youth. The Network is coordinated by the Agency for International Programmes for Youth, which was initially appointed by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and since then re-elected by members.

One of the main activities of the Latvian National Network has been the festival 'On the Other Shore of the Mediterranean', which entered its 4th edition in May 2014. The objective of the festival is to raise awareness in society about cultural diversity in the Euro-Med region and promote cooperation between Latvian civil society and Southern Mediterranean countries. The Festival includes a wide range of educational and entertaining events starting with dance performances and workshops, language and dance classes, exhibitions, film evenings, concerts and ending with debates, lectures and meetings with experts on the current situation in the region.

In 2010, ALF Latvian Network implemented a study visit/travel competition '1001 faces of the Mediterranean'. In 2012, 'Forum on Neighbourhood Cooperation' was organised to inform Latvian organizations of civil society on the opportunities of cooperation with Mediterranean and other two neighbouring regions of the EU. Through the ALF Grants Programme, the Latvian organisation 'Vidzeme University of Applied Sciences' took part in the 'Baltic International Summer School: Intercultural Encounters in Eastern Europe and Mediterranean Area'; the programme, which centred on a two week summer school, brought together civil society groups from Latvia, Tunisia, Egypt and Lithuania, combining academic teaching sessions with social cross-cultural activities. In the same year, the Latvian Network organised two training courses entitled 'Do it with Euro-Med I/II' for youth groups from across the country.

Key Figures

- 58 civil society organisations are involved in the Latvian Network
- Egypt, Lithuania, Tunisia, Palestine, Jordan and Spain are the countries that the Latvian civil society organisations partnered with through the Anna Lindh Grants Programme

Lebanon

The Lebanese Network of the Anna Lindh Foundation has directed and collaborated in more than 30 transnational projects. The Network is coordinated by the Lebanese National Commission for UNESCO.

Between 2006 and 2007, the ALF launched training activities for the Lebanese civil society on capacity building, networking and project of proposal writing. In the area of education, the ALF organized in 2009, in partnership with the Lebanese Network, a training workshop for teachers on 'Challenges of Diversity at the School in the Euro-Med Region' and training on 'Teaching Religious Diversity in Beirut.' In the culture domain, the winner of the Euro-Med 2008 was Rima Maroun, the Lebanese photographer, for her project 'The Whispers' which presented an exhibition in Beirut in June 2009 with the sponsorship of the EU Delegation. In addition, in 2009, the Network organized under the patronage of the Ministry of Culture, the Cultural Arts 'Dialogue Night' with more than 400 participants. In 2010, the Lebanese Network organized during November a series of cultural manifestations aiming at mobilising civil society for the principles of diversity. One of the members of the Lebanese network, Assabil, hosted in May 2010 a creative writing workshop for the winners of the second edition of the international competition the Sea of Words. The National Network coordinated a presentation of the Anna Lindh Report on the Intercultural Trends in Beirut in November 2010, and the 'Dawrak - Education for Intercultural Citizenship' training which took place in Beirut in 2013.

National actions launched in recent years with ALF support have included: 'Different but united: the Lebanese experience', carried out in several regions of the country, and 'Urban Space: Sharing daily life' which focused on community participation.

Lithuania

The Lithuanian Network of the Anna Lindh Foundation is actively promoting intercultural dialogue agenda in fields including international relations, media, culture and youth. The elected Network coordinator is the 'Kultūros centras In Actio', a NGO based in Vilnius.

The Network has actively contributed in the Foundation's region-wide campaigns, including '1001 Actions for Dialogue' in 2008, and 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' in 2009. Campaign actions included the initiative 'Sea of Friendship', which brought together Lithuanian, Israeli and Palestinian local authorities with a focus on cultural cooperation, and the development of the dialogue web platform 'For Tolerance'. Through ALF's Grant Programme, the project 'Encouraging the Communication between Lithuanian and Jordanian Organised Civil Societies' was financed, and the Network organised the national training seminar 'Lithuania in the Euro-Med context' and the common action 'Arab Culture Days' with ALF Network Support.

Under the Lithuanian Presidency of the European Council, the Network co-organised in 2013 the annual meeting of the ALF Heads of National Networks which brought together civil society leaders from 42 countries. The ALF's Board of Governors was also hosted in Vilnius with Senior Ambassadors from the Member States of the Union for the Mediterranean.

Luxembourg

The ALF Network in Luxembourg promotes the intercultural dialogue agenda through the areas of youth, arts, media and democratic participation. The Network is coordinated by the Centre culturel de Rencontre Abbaye de Neumünster (CCRN), which was re-elected by the members in 2012.

Through the Grants Programme of the ALF, the Network established collaborations with the Israeli and Palestinian National Networks to launch new programmes such as “srael - Palestine: their voice, their ways to resume dialogue?” For the campaign “1001 Actions for Dialogue”, the Network has played a leading role through the organisation of a month of dialogue debates and cultural activities. The following year, in 2009, it participated in co-organizing with ALF the first meeting of Euro-Med youth bloggers with social media activists from 18 Euro-Mediterranean countries. In 2010, the project the Eldorado of the Medusa led to the creation of a high school play dealing with the issue of migration, and in 2011, the forum “Diversity in common” brought together actors of French, Belgian, German and Luxembourg.

2012 was an emblematic year in the Network work which hosted from 9 to 12 September nearly 70 young protagonists of the Arab Spring and Indignants movements in Europe, from twenty European and Arab countries. IndignaCtion Forum was held at Luxembourg, Abbaye de Neumünster, and consisted of a three-day gathering with passionate meetings, exchanges, debates and public events. ‘HomeMed’ is a creative radio concept of Network, constructed around local, national projects and the Euro-Mediterranean area, focusing on intercultural dialogue; the radio broadcast, being transmitted on the waves of Radio ARA, highlighting young talents of the Euro-Mediterranean region belonging to various cultural domains, as well as projects supporting intercultural dialogue, promoting its emergence, its enhancement and sustainability.

Malta

The Maltese Network of the Anna Lindh Foundation led and partnered in several new intercultural dialogue programmes financed by the ALF and involving partners from the South and North of the Mediterranean, including 'MozartFest: Reaching Youth through Music', 'WISE: Women Led Participation in European Projects' and 'Dove of Peace'. The Network is coordinated by the Geminarie Group, which was elected Head of Network by members of the national network in June 2013.

In 2006, the ALF partnered in the organisation of the Euro-Mediterranean University Forum, in cooperation with the University of Malta, which brought together academic experts and students from more than 30 countries of the region. In the framework of the ALF's '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign in 2008, 15 projects were launched by Network members in Malta, including the 'Concert for Intercultural Dialogue' which included performances with musicians of immigrant backgrounds teaming with other local artists. In 2009, the ALF was involved in the organisation of 'D'une seule voix Concert', in partnership with the Malta Tourism Authority, which brought together 34 musicians from Palestine and Israel (Gaza, Ibbillion, Bethlehem, Jerusalem and Tel Aviv).

In October 2009, the ALF organised in Malta the first regional communication training seminar for project leaders of long-term intercultural programmes, with the involvement of Euro-Mediterranean media experts. At the institutional level, the ALF has collaborated regularly with Malta's Mediterranean Institute of Diplomacy on the 'Euro-Med Information and Training Seminars for Diplomats', and the ALF took part in the first Alliance of Civilizations Mediterranean Forum. The Maltese Network has actively participated to the annual meetings of the ALF Heads of Networks alongside civil society leaders of the 42 Member States of the Union for the Mediterranean.

Mauritania

The Mauritanian Network is the most recent national network of the ALF, created at the end of 2008 following the entry of Mauritania in the Union for the Mediterranean. The Network is coordinated by the Ministry of Culture, Youth and Sports, which was appointed as the head of the Network in 2008.

Within the framework of first Anna Lindh Mediterranean Forum for Intercultural Dialogue, which was held in Barcelona in March 2010, the Mauritanian Network took part in the key components of the Forum, including dialogue debates of 'Agora' and the components of 'Medina' related to the exchange of best practices with groups of civil society in 43 countries of the Euro-Mediterranean Region.

In 2011, with the financial support of the Anna Lindh Foundation, the National Network was involved in the launch of a new initiative entitled "Days of Diversity". 300 students from the University of Nouakchott participated in the discussions of the conference and in the evenings 2000 people, including young women, intellectuals and students gathered to reflect on cultural diversity and national unity. The Mauritanian Network has organised two major activities 'L'éducation aux droits de l'homme' and 'Quels Enseignements pour les Printemps Arabes en Mauritanie: Place et Rôle des Jeunes et des Femmes dans les Instances de Décision pour un Meilleur Développement Inclusif en Mauritanie' (2014).

Monaco

The Anna Lindh Network in Monaco is one of the youngest National Networks of the Foundation, having been established in 2008 following Monaco's entry to the Union for the Mediterranean. The Network is coordinated by the Monaco Méditerranée Foundation.

The ALF and its Head of Network in Monaco secured in 2009 the political and financial support of the Principality of Monaco to host for a period of 3 years the International Ceremony of the Anna Lindh Journalist Award for Reporting across Cultures. In October 2009, the first Journalist Award Ceremony in Monaco was opened by the Sovereign Prince of Monaco, with the participation of more than 200 people, including media and civil society representatives from the two shores of the Mediterranean.

In 2010 and 2011, the programme was enlarged to include the meeting of the international jury, new prize categories and international media partnerships with Euronews and Al Arabiya. 2009 also saw the launch of new actions by the Network, with ALF financial support, including: the meeting 'Recontre Internationalaux'. In July 2010, ALF facilitated the launch of a new cooperation between the Town Hall of Monaco and the Bibliotheca Alexandrina (BA), centred on the regular sending of books from the Louis Notati Library to the Bibliotheca.

Key Figures

- 20 civil society organisations have been involved in the Monégasque Network
- Over 200 participants attended the Anna Lindh Journalist Award ceremony in Monaco in 2011

Montenegro

The Anna Lindh Foundation's Network in Montenegro came to fruition following the country's entry to the Union for the Mediterranean in July 2008. The Network is coordinated by the National Ministry of Culture.

Supported in the framework of the ALF Call for Proposals in 2013, Montenegrin NGO NOVA in cooperation with Koza Visual from Istanbul implemented the project 'Penelopolis - Women's Mapping of Mediterranean Towns / Podgorica 2013'. The set of project activities was conceived as a female re-mapping of Mediterranean towns' cultural maps, through research, exhibitions and art residencies.

In 2014, NGO Expeditio implemented the ALF supported project 'Spaces of diversity - public space as the field of intercultural dialogue and promotion of social values'. Based on the fact that urban public spaces are often subordinated to commercial facilities and that citizens are not involved enough in their creation, the project promoted social values in the public spaces of cities in Albania, Jordan and Montenegro. Activities of the project included creative workshops for the youth, interventions in public spaces, shared publications and study visits to project countries.

In recent years, the Network has launched a series of national actions with ALF support. They included: 'Inspiration Mediterranean', a programme of fine art workshops led by renowned Montenegrin artists dedicated to the development of contemporary expression of young creative leaders in the regional context; and 'Art Action: Youth 4 Intercultural Dialogue and Social Inclusion' consisting of a set of non-formal educational trainings for young leaders, including intercultural music workshops, creative writing trainings, debates and workshops with a focus on the fields of intercultural dialogue, social inclusion and diversity.

Key Figures

- 45 member organisations have been involved in the Montenegrin Network
- Five civil society organisations were either leaders or partners in transnational intercultural projects supported by the Anna Lindh Foundation
- Bosnia and Herzegovina, France and Turkey are among the countries that the civil society organisations in Montenegro most partnered with through the Anna Lindh Grant Programme
- Around 100 attended the Photo Exhibition entitled 'Faces of the Mediterranean' held in Montenegro in April and May 2010
- Ilija Djurovic was selected as a finalist of the 2010 edition literary contest 'Sea of Words' with his story 'Stutterer', while in 2011 he won the Second Prize with the short story 'THC and LCD'. # Morocco

The Moroccan Network of the Anna Lindh Foundation actively works across fields such as education, gender equality, media, culture and youth. The Network is coordinated by the Centre International de Cooperation Sud Nord (CICSN) who was elected by the members in 2011.

In collaboration with the Moroccan and Spanish Networks of the ALF and the United Nations Association in Spain, ALF organised in 2008 the 'Conference of the Euro-Mediterranean Partnership and the Young Alliance of Civilizations' and a CADMOS Euro-Med Meeting in Tangier on conflict resolution. In 2008, the Moroccan Network launched 15 new actions under '1001 Actions for Dialogue' and organised a demonstration for the Euro-Mediterranean Dialogue Night. In March 2009, the ALF organised regional training of the network trainers for three days in Rabat, bringing together 25 participants from 20 different countries. In collaboration with the network of Euro-Med Journalism, ALF welcomed the regional conference on the 'Freedom of the Press' in 2010 in Marrakesh, and in October, the Network hosted the first national debate in the Arab region on Intercultural Trends Report prepared by ALF in the presence of more than 100 academic experts. Rabat also hosted the fourth meeting of the ALF Advisory Council, while Euro-Med researchers met in Khouribga for 'Women, Migration and Development' seminar.

Throughout 2011, the Network organised joint regional actions in Tangier: the first was organized in partnership with the Spanish Network of ALF, entitled 'Building Bridges over the Strait' to strengthen communications between members of both countries networks; the second 'Cities and Diversity' with the French Network focusing on cultural awareness activities in Tetouan and Oujda. In October 2012, the 'Young Voices' launching event was held at the National Library in Rabat; and in 2013, the first meeting of the 'Youth in Politics' was carried out.

Netherlands

The Dutch Network of the Anna Lindh Foundation involves more than one hundred CSOs based in towns and cities across the country. The Network is coordinated by the European Association for History Educators (EUROCLIO), which was selected through a public competition in 2011 and then renewed through elections in 2013.

In 2007, with the support of the Dutch government, the ALF organised in partnership with the European Culture Foundation the regional workshop for youth leaders on 'Settlement of Conflicts through Cultural Cooperation'; one of the outcomes of the workshop, which involved 24 participants from 22 Euro-Mediterranean countries, was the publication and regional launch of the ALF manual for trainers entitled 'Conflict Resolution and Cultural Cooperation'. In 2008, in the framework of the ALF's '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign, the Dutch Network launched a series of actions, principally focused on issues related to minority groups and the integration of immigrants. In 2009, the first 'Euro-Med Young Journalists Academy' was organised with the support of the ALF and the German Head of Network, the Goethe Institute.

Through the ALF Grants programme, the Network launched a conference on the UNESCO day of diversity entitled 'Recipe for Dialogue: Shaping Diverse Societies through Culture, Youth and Education'. The follow-up initiative 'Connecting through Creativity' resulted in a series of audiovisual products aimed at showcasing how the arts can bring people together from diverse cultural backgrounds. Programmes granted support through the ALF Call for Proposals have included 'Beyond our World: the Mediterranean Exchange Leader' and 'Storytelling in Youth Peace Advocacy'.

Palestine

The Palestinian Network is the largest ALF Network in the Southern Mediterranean. The Network has a Network Coordinator, Tawasul, elected by the General Assembly of Members, with a deputy coordinator in the Gaza Strip, the General Union of Cultural Centers (GUCC).

In December 2005, Palestinian Network members came together in Alexandria for a joint training seminar with Egyptian members focused on capacity-building and international project development, financed by the German government. In 2008, the Network launched 25 new actions in the framework of the '1001 Actions for Dialogue'. Palestinian members also took part in organising the 'Live from Gaza' video conference for the Euro-Med Civil Society Platform meeting taking place in Marseilles in 2008.

Following the launch of the ALF's 2009 Initiative 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges', organised in response to the war in Gaza, Palestinian members were involved in 3 local actions and in 13 regional Initiatives. In the framework of the initiative, the Foundation also organised a weeklong Theatre Festival in September in the cities of Gaza, Bethlehem, Hebron and Jenin which included performances addressing issues such as social relief, non-violent self-determination and coexistence.

Between 2010 and 2011, Network common actions launched in Palestine focused on capacity-building for members with two training courses launched in Gaza and the West Bank. More recent national initiatives have included 'Utilising Theatre in Promoting Human Rights' and a series of cultural events held across the Gaza Strip and West Bank on intercultural dialogue action.

Poland

The ALF Network in Poland has been involved in leading and partnering in various intercultural dialogue programmes. The Network is jointly coordinated by the International Cultural Centre and the International Cultural Centre Foundation in Krakow.

In 2008, the Polish Network launched a series of new actions in the framework of the '1001 Actions for Dialogue', including: 'Poland for Dialogue' which led to a public debate in Krakow on the influence of foreign cultures and ethnic minorities throughout the years; the Network also launched a special campaign publication, including actions, debates and expert interviews on cross-cultural relations. The following year, in 2009, 'In Search for the Lost Commonwealth: Uni or Multicultural Poland?' was launched by the Network with ALF support, centering on a seminar series and a new publication presenting modern-day Poland from the perspective of the 'other'. Throughout 2010 and 2011, the Network followed up with 'Education for Dialogue', which involved members in developing new multi-media pedagogical materials related to addressing Poland's ethnic, religious, social and cultural diversity.

For the first time in Poland, in 2011, the Head of Network co-organised the annual meeting of the 43 Heads of National Network, in association with the Senior Officials Meeting of the Euro-Med Partnership. In 2013 and 2014, the Network launched a series of national actions with ALF support, including 'Together for a Just Future' and 'Nations and Stereotypes: 25 Years after. New Borders, New Horizons'. In 2013, a ground-breaking volume entitled 'Does Poland Lie on the Mediterranean?' was published.

Portugal

The Portuguese network of the Anna Lindh Foundation has entered into partnerships in the light of trans-intercultural dialogue programmes with civil society groups in countries including Morocco, Spain, Algeria, Turkey, Germany and Palestine. The network is coordinated by Centro Nacional de Cultura (CNC), who was elected as Head of the Network by its members in June 2014

In 2008, the Portuguese Network participated for the first time in organising a series of activities at local and national level within the framework of the campaign '1001 Actions for Dialogue' including festivals, intercultural meetings and debates. In 2009, the initiative 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' launched by ALF led to the Portuguese Initiative 'A projection for a better understanding,' which was performed in the Festival Sete Sois Sete Lucas and focused on promoting the value of artistic exchange with Christians, Jews and Muslims.

As part of the artistic exchange at the Anna Lindh Forum 2010, the Head of the Portuguese Network implemented and coordinated the exhibition 'On this side and the other,' which focused on photographs of daily life in Palestine and Israel taken by people from Portugal, France, Greece and Poland. In 2013, the Portuguese Network was involved in contributing to the Council of Europe's Lisbon Forum of Civil Society, in addition to the annual Advisory Council Meeting of the Anna Lindh Foundation which was hosted in Portugal for the first time.

Romania

The ALF Network in Romania has partnered in intercultural dialogue projects with civil society groups and institutions in countries including Egypt, Jordan, Italy, Spain and Turkey. The Network is coordinated by the Black Sea University Foundation, which was originally appointed by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and then confirmed by Members.

In 2008, the Romanian Network actively took part in the ALF's campaign for the Euro-Med Year of Dialogue between Cultures: '1001 Actions for Dialogue', organising a series of events and activities focused on increasing understanding and challenging stereotypes among the different communities of Romania. The following year, in 2009, one of the Network members launched 'Dialogue in a bits world: promotion of good practices of multi-ethnic coexistence in Constanta and Dobrogea' as part of the ALF 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' initiative. In 2010, ALF organised in the Romanian city of Predeal a regional training seminar with civil society leaders from 38 different countries of the Euro-Mediterranean region with the aim of promoting networking and joint project initiatives in the framework of the ALF's grant scheme.

'Migrants in the Spotlight', a national action launched with ALF support, brought together NGO leaders with journalists and public institutions to debate concrete community initiatives related to the positive social contribution of migrants. The follow-up initiative 'Intercultural Dialogue in a multi-cultural society' centred on a 3-day training programme aimed at developing communication skills to overcome cultural differences, and to explore the roots of social discrimination.

Key Figures

- 35 civil society organisations have been involved in the Romanian Network

Slovak Republic

The Anna Lindh Foundation's Network in the Slovak Republic has actively partnered in new ALF transnational projects with civil society groups in countries including the Czech Republic, The Netherlands and Palestine. The Network is coordinated by the National Trust of Slovakia, which was re-elected by members in June 2013.

The Slovak Network organised several projects including: 'Culture of Diversity - Diversity of Cultures' by the Bratislava House of Europe with a programme of workshops and debates focused on managing cultural diversity, as part of the ALF's first regional campaign '1001 Actions for Dialogue'. The network also organised the 'Egyptian Cultural Heritage Safeguarding' involving members of the general public in discussion on Mediterranean heritage and preservation; the 'Women with Borders' Initiative; and the 'Are you Free?' cultural festival in Dunajska Streda with musicians from Hungary, France, Czech Republic, Poland and Slovakia.

In the framework of the ALF's 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' initiative, People in Peril Association launched 'Peace Dialogue in the Middle East' with civil society representatives from Palestine, Israel and Slovakia; the conference was followed by a public screening of a documentary about the peace dialogue between Arab and Jewish communities in Israel along with a public debate. In April 2010, the 'People in Dialogue' seminar gathered representatives from the ALF Euro-Med Dialogue Award winners 'Combatants for Peace', an Israeli- Palestinian civil society movement, with members of National Networks in Austria, Poland, Hungary, the Czech Republic and Slovakia.

Key Figures

- 18 civil society organisations have been involved in the Slovak Network

Slovenia

The Slovenian Network of the ALF has been involved in developing ALF transnational projects with civil society groups in countries including Bosnia and Herzegovina, Egypt, Palestine, Turkey, Jordan and Tunisia and in the field of academic cooperation, youth work and peace culture. The Network is coordinated by the Zavod Povod.

The Slovenian network launched a range of events as part of the 2008 regional campaign '1001 Actions for Dialogue', as well as taking part in ALF's 2009 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges'. In 2009, the Network member Kulturno Umetnisko Društvo Ponor organised the 'Who's got Broken Shoes?' theatre performance about human rights and coexistence, which led to public debates with local NGOs and minority groups including Roma people and Muslim communities.

The ALF has partnered with the Slovenia-based 'Euro-Med University' (EMUNI) in the field of academic cooperation. In June 2009, the ALF participated in the first multi-conference 'EuroMed Research Souk' in Slovenia which linked through live video 17 universities in 14 different countries to discuss the topic of 'Unity and Diversity of Euro- Mediterranean Identities'. In particular, the Slovenian National Network has been actively engaged in partnerships with Egypt, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Palestine and Turkey.

Four Slovenian organisations were actively involved in the DAWRAK programme. With the intervention and facilitation of ALF network in Slovenia, a memorandum of cooperation was signed between SLOGA, the national platform for development and humanitarian aid in Slovenia, and IFEDA, Center for Information and support to civil organisations in Tunisia, two important institutions that support civil society organisations in their respective countries.

Key Figures

- 80 civil society organisations have been involved in the Slovenian Network
- 8 civil society organisations were either leaders or partners in transnational intercultural projects supported by the Anna Lindh Foundation
- Egypt, Turkey, Palestine, Jordan and Tunisia are the countries that the Slovenian civil society organisations most partnered with through the Anna Lindh Grants Programme
- Hundreds of students attended the Euro-Mediterranean University (EMUNI) each year
- 14 new projects mobilised by ALF through the '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign
- Slovenian journalist Uros Skerl received Anna Lindh Journalist Award 2008
- Daniel Lopez Bonicna and Zmajski Most were awarded in 2013 in the Sea of Words literary competition organised by IEMed and ALF
- 9 civil society organisations were represented at the Anna Lindh Forum 2013 in Marseille
- Slovenia's Ambassador Veronika Stabej is the Chair of the ALF's Board of Governors. Nevenka Koprivsek and Igor Brlek have been members of the ALF's Advisory Council

Spain

Since 2005, the Spanish Network of the Anna Lindh Foundation has been actively involved in conducting transnational projects for intercultural dialogue and in developing partnerships with civil society in countries such as Egypt, France, Italy, Palestine and Turkey. The Network is coordinated by the European Institute of the Mediterranean.

In partnership with the Network, the Anna Lindh Foundation co-hosted a number of Euro-Med events in Spain, including the 2nd meeting of the heads of ALF National Networks in Barcelona (2005). In 2006, two major activities about education and youth were co-organised by ALF, Head of the Spanish Network and the Catalan Ministry of Education: a training seminar with 70 educators teaching cultural diversity, and a Euro-Med Youth Workshop in the framework of the Alliance of Civilizations of the United Nations. In 2008 ALF and the Spanish Network also launched the region's first edition of the literary award: 'A Sea of Words', which reached the 7th edition in 2014.

In 2010, the Anna Lindh Foundation and the Head of the network co-organised the first Anna Lindh Forum, which involved more than 1000 representatives of civil societies from 43 Euro-Med countries, including more than 100 members from the Spanish network. In preparation for the follow-up Anna Lindh Forum in Marseille in 2013, the Foundation has also organised with IEMED a meeting with the High Representatives of the media across the Euro-Med region in Barcelona.

In 2014, the Moroccan network in cooperation with the Spanish network organised the first inter-network joint action with 7 Euro-Mediterranean countries (Morocco, Spain, Ireland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Tunisia and Sweden, the latter as an observer) and in which over 65 activities were conducted under the slogan 'Art, instrument of social transformation'.

Key Figures

- 155 civil society organisations have been involved in the Spanish Network
- 42 civil society organisations were either leaders or partners in transnational intercultural projects supported by the Anna Lindh Foundation
- Italy, Egypt, Palestine and Turkey are the countries that the Spanish civil society organisations most partnered with through the Anna Lindh Grants Programme
- 34 new projects mobilised by ALF through the '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign for 2008's Euro-Med Year of Dialogue
- 1013 participants from 43 countries attended the first Anna Lindh Forum, hosted in Barcelona; 360 people from 118 Spanish civil society organisations participated
- 6 editions of the Literary Competition, which was co-founded in 2008 by the Anna Lindh Foundation and the Head of Spanish Network (IEMed) have been held in Barcelona
- Alberto Arce (El Mundo) in 2009 and Jaume Bartroli (Televisio De Catalunya 3) in 2012 received the Anna Lindh Journalist Award
- 1000 people participated in the Gallup's survey for the Anna Lindh Report 2010
- More than 70 participants attended the seminar 'Euro-Med Education: Knowledge Building and Networking'
- Gema Martin Munoz was a member of the ALF Advisory Committee (2005-2008)

Sweden

The Swedish Network of the ALF has been involved in establishing new trans-Mediterranean partnerships with civil society groups in countries including Poland, Ireland, Morocco, the Netherlands; the Network is coordinated by the National Museums of World Cultures.

As part of the ALF's 2008 campaign '1001 Actions for Dialogue', the Swedish Network coordinated a number of public activities in the context of the Euro-Mediterranean Dialogue Night held in May 2008, including an Arab Hip-Hop initiative which led to new collaborations with Swedish and Arab artists. In 2009, on the International Day of Peace, the ALF, Swedish Network Head and Stockholm Peace Institute co-organised the 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges' Euro-Med Forum with media and civil society representatives from more than 30 countries. The same year, Sweden hosted the Anna Lindh Forum 2010 preparation meeting on 'Media and Public Perceptions' in partnership with the Euro-Med Journalist Network.

Members of the Swedish Network actively participated in the 2013 Anna Lindh Mediterranean Forum in Marseille, and have led a series of national common actions involving different civil society groups, including seminars about storytelling, intercultural dialogue, religious identity, best-practices exchanges and an event about the role of comedy in the dialogue between cultures. Since 2012 the network has held annual 'Peace Day celebrations' involving workshops as well as cultural activities. These events have been major happenings gathering 10 or more member organisations. Every year the network also manages 'intercultural tours' where they invite role-models for intercultural dialogue from the MENA region. During these tours ALF members arrange a variety of activities in their communities around the country. So far these tours have reached Stockholm, Uppsala, Malmo, Gothenburg and Umea.

Key Figures

- 97 civil society organisations have been involved in the Swedish Network
- 10 civil society organisations were either leaders or partners in transnational intercultural projects supported by the Anna Lindh Foundation
- Egypt, Jordan, Palestine and Turkey are the countries that the Swedish civil society organisations most partnered with through the Anna Lindh Grants Programme

Partnerships Established through Anna Lindh Grants

The Anna Lindh Foundation's Network in Syria was established in 2005, with civil society members from various cities and towns including Damascus, Homs and Aleppo. Following Syria's withdrawal from the Union for the Mediterranean in 2011, the Anna Lindh Foundation has worked to involve Syrian citizens in its regional activities.

Between 2006 and 2007, the Anna Lindh Foundation organised a training for multipliers for Syrian civil society on project proposals writing and development. Among the projects funded by the Foundation in the framework of the '1001 Actions for Dialogue' campaign in 2008, there were the Syrian actions 'Go East! Go Syria' and the 'Sham Spiritual Oasis'. Through the action 'Go East! Go Syria', people were brought together to Damascus from a range of countries, including Germany, Turkey and Jordan, with workshops and meetings on the topics of education for dialogue and Syrian-European relations. Within the programme, the major public event was the organisation of the European Cultural Day. The winner of the first edition of the Euro-Med Dialogue Award was Mar Musa Al Habashi Monastery in Syria for its proactive role in the field of interreligious dialogue through an approach of mediation and mutual respect. On behalf of the Monastery, Father Paolo participated in the ALF ad-hoc group 'Major Misconceptions in Intercultural and Interreligious Dialogue' in cooperation with the Arab League (Cairo, 2006), the Dialogue Night held at the Bibliotheca Alexandrina (2006), the Debate on Art and Dialogue (May 2008) organised by the International Cultural Centre in Krakow.

Since 2011, the Foundation has worked through its Networks to involve Syrian citizens in its Euro-Med activities. This has included the Anna Lindh Mediterranean Forum in Marseille and the 'Dawrak: Citizens for Dialogue' programme which developed a specific initiative for Syrian civil society.

Tunisia

Tunisia has hosted a number of important activities involving the Anna Lindh Foundation since its inauguration. The Network is coordinated by 'We Love Sousse', which was elected by the members 2011 and reconfirmed in 2014.

In November 2005, the Anna Lindh Foundation participated in the World Summit on the Information Society in Tunisia, and organised the following month a national workshop on 'the role of young women in society and how to fight against social stereotypes'. In 2007, the Anna Lindh Foundation was also represented at the Euro-Mediterranean Parliamentary Assembly, held in Tunisia. In 2009, the Network members 'The Teatro Space of art and creation' hosted a creative writing workshop in Tunisia for the young winners at the first round of the literary contest 'A Sea of Words', organised in collaboration with the Network Head. In 2010, as part of its national initiative, the Network organised a joint event in several Tunisian cities, entitled 'Ana Tounsy' with the participation of about 3000 person, a delegation from the French network and 13 informational sessions held in different cities.

Following the historical events of 2011 in Tunisia and in the Arab region, the Anna Lindh Foundation launched an initiative across the region entitled 'Believe in Dialogue, Act for Citizenship'. The initiative included a Euro-Mediterranean Social Media Forum and activities in Tunisia, where members of the National Network had the opportunity to interact with civil society on good practices of citizenship with the participation across the region. The 'Tunis Forum' was also the occasion to present for the first time the 'Young Arab Voices' programme which led to the establishment of national debating hubs across Tunisia. In January 2014, Tunisia hosted the Consultative Meeting on 'the role of citizens in the construction of open and pluralistic societies', organised as part of Dawrak Programme. Moreover, ALF organised with the Network, a training on 'Education for Intercultural Citizenship' in February 2014.

Turkey

The Turkish Network of the ALF has been involved in launching intercultural dialogue projects across the Mediterranean. The Network is coordinated by Third Sector Foundation of Turkey (TUSEV), System and Generation Association (S&G), and the Association of Civil Society and Development Institute (ACSDI).

In 2006, the ALF partnered with the Euro-Med Youth Platform for a networking event in Istanbul involving youth leaders from 30 countries. With the Istanbul Foundation for Culture and Arts, the ALF organised in 2007 the 'Youth Workshop for the Settlement of Conflicts through Cultural Cooperation' in Istanbul. The workshop was attended by 40 youth leaders and youth workers from 27 Euro-Mediterranean countries.

For the ALF's 2009 'Restore Trust, Rebuild Bridges', System and Generation Association launched the action 'Youth Incubator for Reconciliation'. In August 2010, the Network meeting brought together in Istanbul civil society groups from various towns and cities including Ankara, Çanakkale and Eskişehir. In 2012, Istanbul played host to the ALF Advisory Council and the first preparation meeting for the Anna Lindh Mediterranean Forum on the theme of youth.

The Turkish Network organised the common action 'Environment, Culture and Social Responsibility' in 2013 with 70 participants from 5 different countries. In the workshops non-formal education methods were used, and experts supported participants in creating new projects. In 2014 the Regional Meeting and Workshop 'Interreligious, Intercultural Dialogue and Dialogue with Music' was organised with the workshop teaching dialogue between religions and cultures to young people, involving members of the Turkish Network and of other ALF National Networks.

United Kingdom

UK civil society has played a central role in the regional programme of the Anna Lindh Foundation, leading and collaborating in 18 new transnational projects since 2006, involving partners in the Middle East and North Africa region. The UK Network, which includes international NGOs, academic institutions and media bodies, is coordinated by Ion Creative, which was elected by members in 2011.

Projects have taken place in the field of literature, online media and blogging, artistic mobility and creativity. Between 2005 and 2010, and with the ALF network support scheme, the Network has organised a number of networking, outreach and training meetings. In collaboration with the Network, several international forums have been co-organised in the UK by the ALF including: the workshop and art exhibition 'Cross Border Arts' to present and discuss the work of artists following the war in Lebanon in 2006. More than 100 journalists and media from the Middle East and Europe gathered in London for the first time after the 2009 Gaza War for the ALF's 'In the Aftermath of Gaza: Media Narratives and Public Perceptions' organised with the University of Westminster and Chatham House; the conference 'Rethinking Dialogue' in December 2010 which was co-organised by the British Council and the Anna Lindh Foundation and featured the national launch of the Anna Lindh Report on Intercultural Trends.

The UK Head of Network has played an important role in the development of 'Young Arab Voices' (YAV), the Anna Lindh Foundation's response programme to the historic Arab social uprisings focused on skills for dialogue and debate. This included co-organising in 2012 and 2013 the YAV Arab Debate Café initiative with universities and NGOs based in London. National actions launched in this period also included 'Creative Connections for Intercultural Dialogue' and 'Beyond Borders: The Art of Dialogue'.

Key Figures

- 102 civil society organisations have been involved in the UK National Network
- 20 organisations have been granted ALF financial support for leading or partnering in transnational projects

Governance, Management and Financing

Governance and Management

Co-financed by the countries of the Union for the Mediterranean and the European Commission, the ALF is ruled by a Board of Governors composed of representatives of those countries. The Board approves the programme and the budget of the Foundation, and appoints the President and the Executive Director. The Foundation has its international headquarters in Alexandria, Egypt.

The ALF President represents the Foundation in its external relations, presides over the Advisory Council, reports to the Ministerial meetings, and assists the Executive Director in the preparation of the multi-annual work programme. The Foundation is managed by its Executive Director who manages the Foundation, prepares the programme and the budget, appoints and heads the staff, prepares the meetings of the Board of Governors and acts as the legal representative of the Foundation.

The Advisory Council, which advises the Board of Governors, the Executive Director and the National Networks, is selected by the Board. It is composed of 18 members, 9 from EU countries and 9 from Mediterranean partner countries, chosen for their background, experience and independence in the field of intercultural dialogue. The Anna Lindh Foundation functions as a Network of National Networks. The Networks are coordinated by Heads of Network who contribute to the strategy and programme development of the Foundation, through the annual Heads meeting and ongoing consultation.
